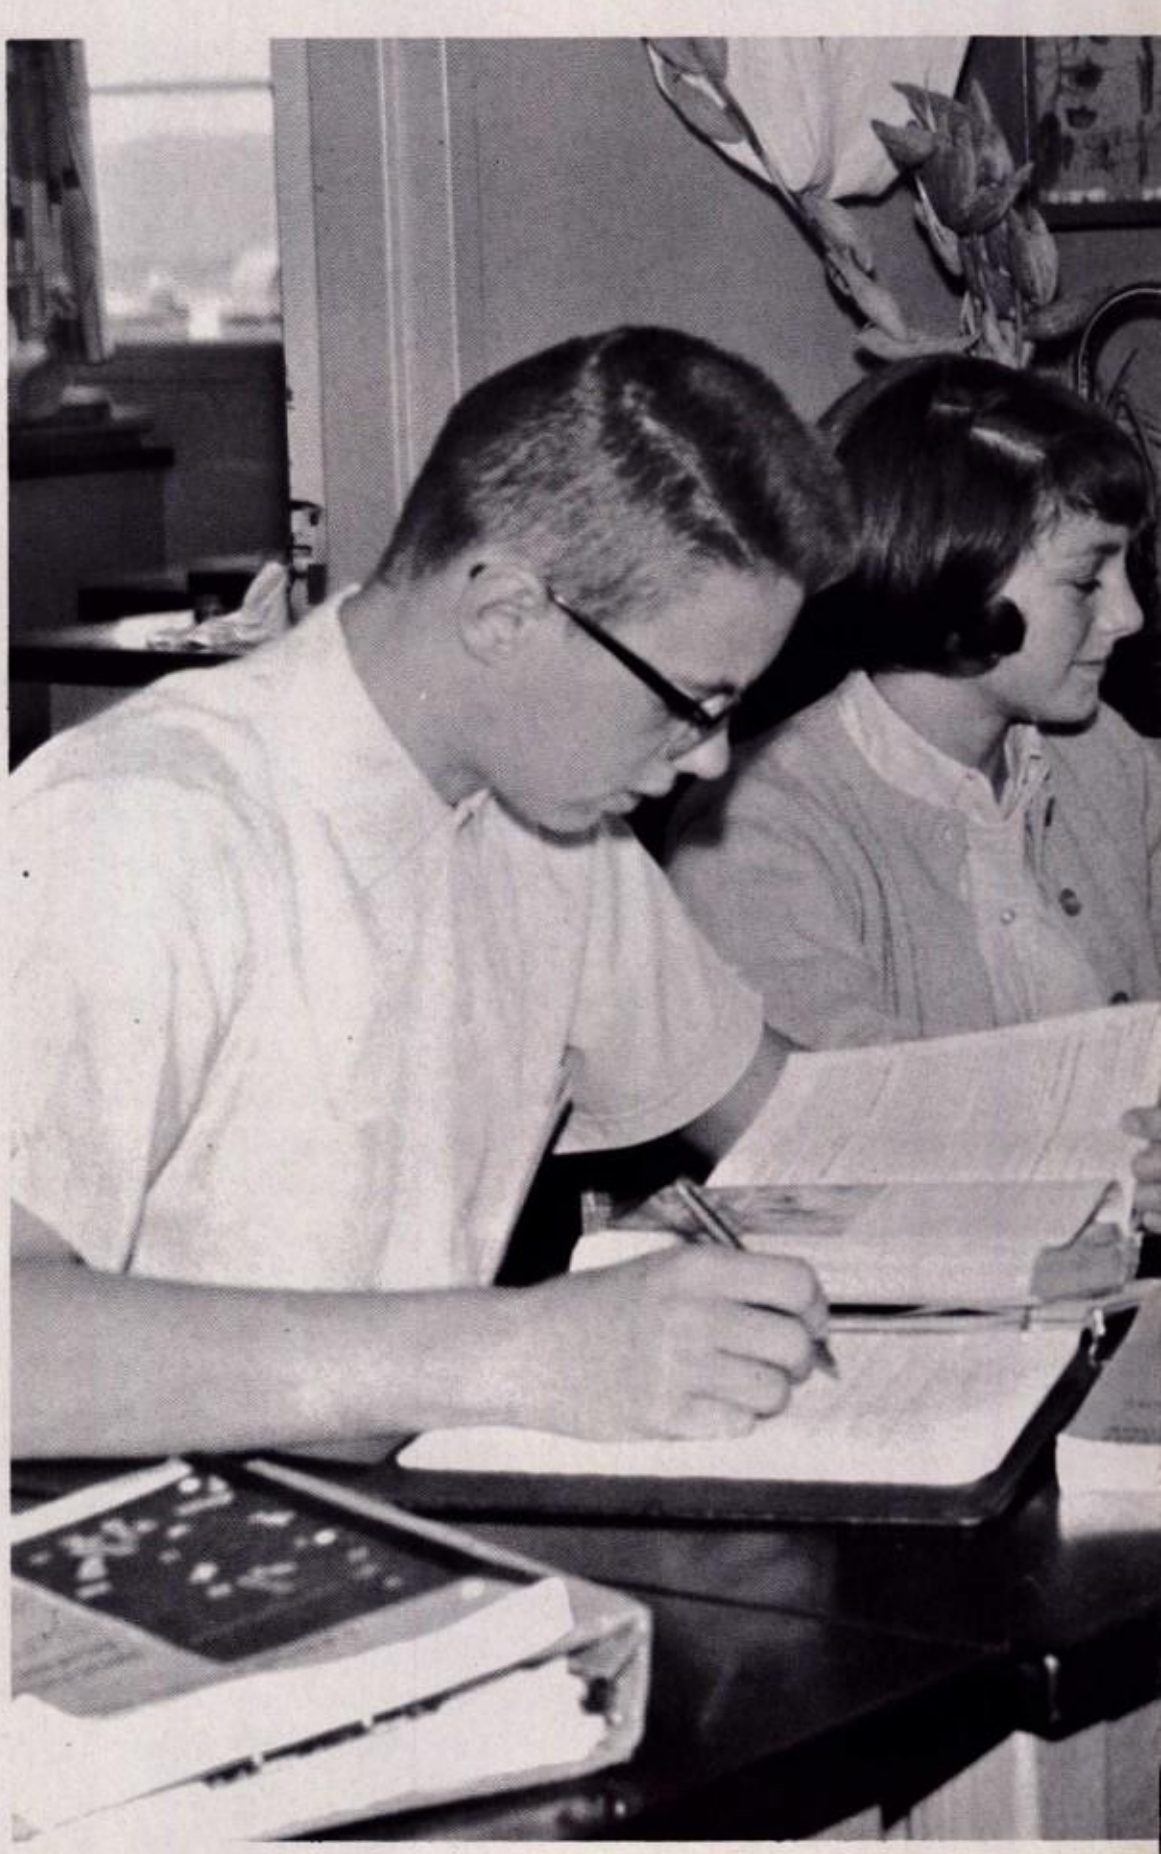
Eager students



sought strong education and good grades.

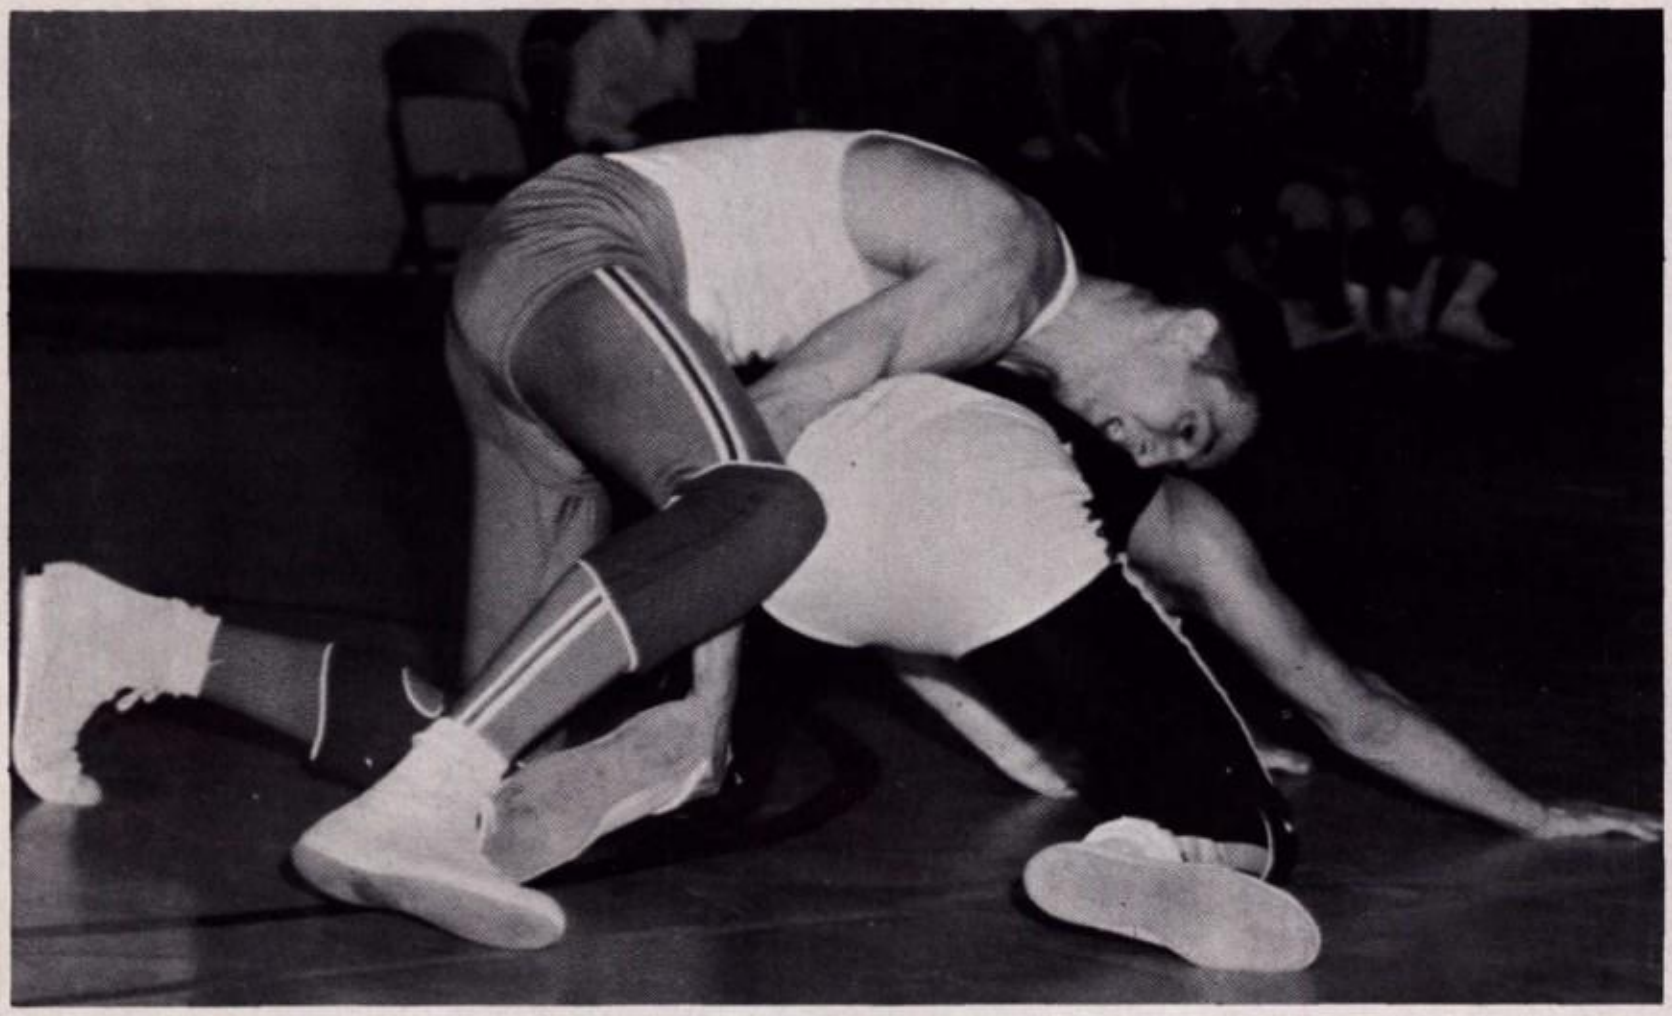
"Academic life was never like this when I was in school!" So ran the comments of the parents who visited the Harold L. Richards Campus building on its dedication day, November 21, 1965.

And indeed, academic life never was like this before. The three modern buildings which make up the Harold L. Richards Cluster were designed with the students in mind – the students who spend 6 hours a day, 5 days a week in these, their homes away from home. The academic opportunities available to each student are almost unlimited, and the environment for learning is excellent.

Gay moments

The events which gave us the most satisfaction were the ones we remembered most. The infectious beat of the music at the Roundup Dance and the Fall Frolic, the colorful dramatics of the Senior and Junior class plays, the romance of the Turnabout Dance, and the grandeur of the Prom all combined to provide a brilliant social season for students at Harold L. Richards High School.

ocial events formed pleasant memories.



Bul

A strong body is as important as a strong mind. The athletic program at Harold L. Richards High School was designed to build character and sportsmanship as well as physical stamina.

Our varsity teams were placed in the unfavorable position of representing a new school against older, well-established teams. Although experienced sportsmen predicted complete failure for our teams, most teams managed to win at least one victory. The busloads of students who attended each game displayed their spirited support of the teams by cheering them loudly.

athletes were dedicated sportsmen.

Student life was satisfying for active students.

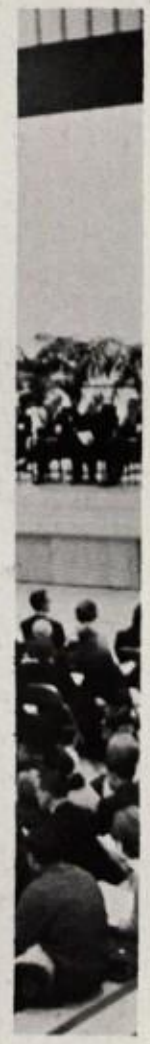
Administration and Faculty

The school activities of the students and faculty of Harold L. Richards High School were guided by the administration staff, headed by Dr. Harold L. Richards and supported by the offices of the staff members. The administration expressed a sincere interest in the welfare of the student body by organizing the curriculum to serve the best interests of the students and providing the opportunity and facilities for athletic and social events. Effective communication between the administration and the student body resulted in greater understanding and awareness of the problems students face.



Leslie I. Mc Cord

President of the Board of Education

The administration, faculty, and students of Harold L. Richards High School gratefully acknowledge Mr. Leslie I. McCord's ten years of distinguished service as President of the Community High School Board of Education, District 218.

Mr. McCord was appointed a member of the Board of Education on June 8, 1944, to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Clifford L. Aulwurm. He was chosen as secretary in 1946 and entered upon an extended tour of educational leadership. After ten years of efficient service in this position, he was selected as President by fellow board members in April, 1956. Mr. McCord has successfully handled the business and financial affairs of the district, in conjunction with Dr. Harold L. Richards and the other members of the board. He has been a leader in the great educational advance of District 218 in the last decade and continues to serve the community and its schools.

Born on October 8, 1899, Mr. McCord graduated from the Community High School in 1918. He received a Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Illinois in 1922. Mr. and Mrs. McCord have a daughter, Nancy, now Mrs. James Bronson, and a son, John.

Mr. McCord's business talents are not confined to the Board of Education. He also serves as President of the First National Bank of Blue Island. His fine record of community service is further highlighted by his active membership in the Elks and Lions Clubs.

The staff of the Golden Year is proud to dedicate this first edition to Leslie I. McCord.

Parent-Faculty Association

During the school year, the Parent-Faculty Association officers were kept busy planning programs which were held four times a year. These meetings were designed to build a closer relationship between the school and the community.

Mrs. Seramer and Mrs. Chrysler visited Mr. Tyler's Social Studies class at the January meeting of the PFA.

PFA officers of Campus I and Campus II met for the first time in a combined session at the Eisenhower Building in September.

Faculty

The faculty of Harold L. Richards High School is a group dedicated to helping students meet the educational requirements of the future. As instructors of courses which ran the gamut from electrical shop to conventional Russian, they prepared their students for future education and careers. Scholastic goals, however, were not the only interest of the faculty. Its members also served as sponsors and advisers of school clubs and activities.

With the opening of the new Harold L. Richards graduating unit, several new teachers joined the faculty. The total faculty consisted of 139 teachers, including 57 who held advanced degrees. The three buildings were also served by nine counselors and three nurses. Harold L. Richard's students received the benefits of a capable, dedicated faculty in their daily learning experience.

toward higher degrees.

Mr. Porter, Mr. Hansen, and Mr. Johnson relaxed between classes in the faculty lounge.

A new school is born.

This beautiful portrait of Dr. and Mrs. Harold L. Richards was hung in the "sky-line" stairway of the new Harold L. Richards graduating unit.

The Rev. Gerald J. Whelan, C.SS.R., Holy Redeemer College, Washington, D. gave the invocation at the Dedication Ceremony of the new graduation unit of Harold L. Richards High School on November 21, 1965. Front Row (standing):
Harold L. Richards, superintendent of District 218; Mr. L. I. McCord, school boa president; Dr. Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools; Rev. Donald Jansn pastor, Green Oak Reformed Church, Oak Lawn, Illinois. Second Row: Mr. Birt Frobish, assistant superintendent of District 218; Mr. Harry C. Schuldt, school boa member; and Mrs. Lucille Perschau, president, Aux. to V.F.W. Post 5220.

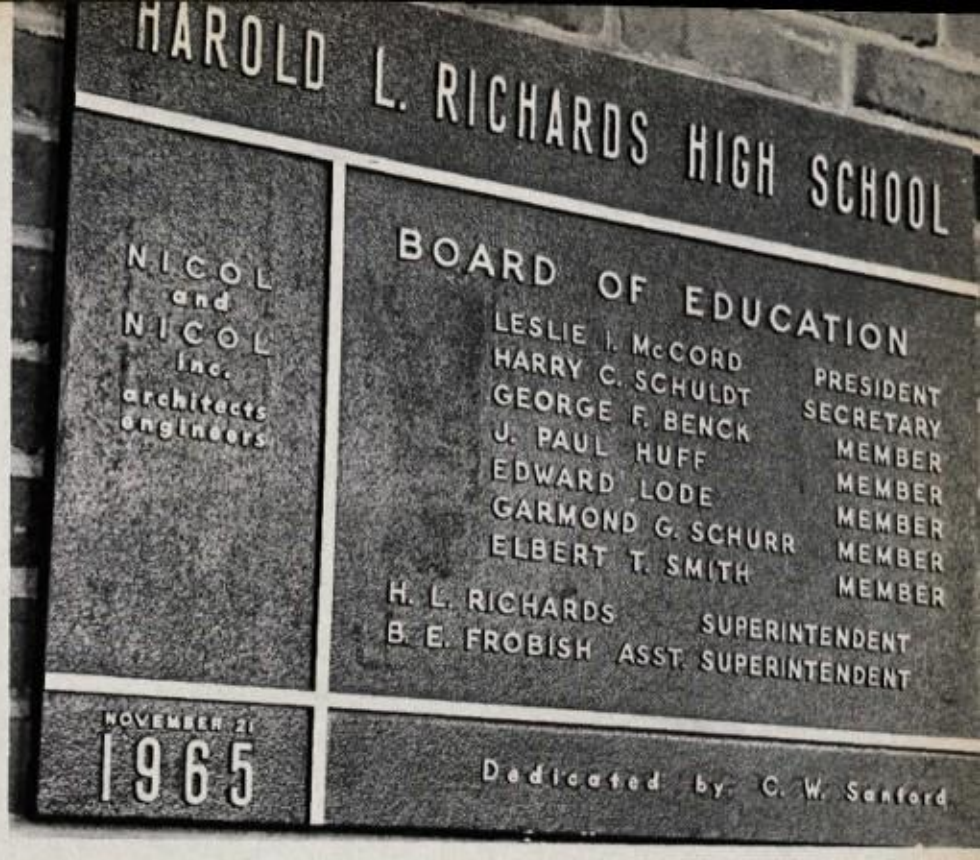
Dr. Charles W. Sanford give the dedication address.

Commander Johnson Phelps, V.F.W. Post 5220, presented Mr. Lloyd J. Lowe, building principal, with the American flag for the new Harold L. Richards Campus Building.



After the dedication of the new Harold L. Richards Campus Building, this plaque was hung in the main entrance hall of the new building.

Dr. Harold L. Richards was master of ceremonies at the dedication of the new graduating unit, named in his honor.

The new graduating unit of the Harold L. Richards High School was officially dedicated November 21, 1965, by Dr. Charles W. Sanford, Dean of Admissions and Records at the University of Illinois. Dr. Sanford said that the new Harold L. Richards unit represented vision, careful planning and hard work on the part of Dr. Richards, the faculty, Mr. McCord and other members of the Board of Education. Dr. Sanford went on to tell the audience that he had worked with Dr. Richards and members of the faculty for a number of years and had the highest respect for their achievements. Since these achievements were many, they might be summarized by stating that Community High School District 218 enjoys an excellent and well-deserved reputation, especially in connection with the Two-Two Plan. This plan has been adopted widely throughout the nation after being initiated by Dr. Richards here. Dr. Sanford also mentioned that the counseling and guidance programs and educational offerings were excellent in District 218.

Dr. Sanford told of the increasing need for a high school diploma and praised this school for its great improvements in keeping students in high school and interested in further education beyond high school. In closing, he offered his most sincere congratulations to Mr. McCord, the other members of the Board of Education and the citizens of this district for providing the new building. He said he was glad that it was named the Harold L. Richards High School, for it was an appropriate recognition of Dr. Richards' excellent leadership in the district and his contributions to education in Illinois and the nation. His interest, persistence and accomplishments in providing superior high schools for the youth of this district was a source of inspiration and encouragement to all of us. Dr. Sanford added parenthetically but with emphasis, "We salute also the interest and splendid co-operation of Mrs. Richards."

Seniors

Motivated by the desire to create a record of successful accomplishment, seniors left a lasting impression on their fellow students. The exhausting pace of many fourth-year courses demanded extra study and research work. Senior opinions and attitudes did much to influence the thoughts of the entire student body, and their efforts to excel in scholarship, citizenship, and sportsmanship drew respect from students and faculty alike. As graduation approached, the seniors gained confidence in their ability to meet the challenges of the future.

Seniors

As the Class of 1966 reached the apex of their high school career, they could point with pride at their accomplishments in the past four years. They had laid the foundations of their future life through academics and activities.

Preparing for college and careers was the main concern of the seniors, who plowed through "Hamlet" and calculus and diligently worked to increase their skills in shorthand, typing, and other vocational courses. Seniors who planned on going to college met requirements by taking the A.C.T.'s or S.A.T.'s. Jean Knoll, Arthur Bunce, and Richard Leyerle received letters of commendation from the National Merit Scholarship Board indicating their academic excellence.

Seniors led our clubs and spearheaded Project Viet Nam and the Appalachian Drive, both of which collected clothing and other goods to be sent to needy people here and abroad. Senior boys also led the attack of our Bulldog teams, resulting in several amazing victories. As the first graduating class at Harold L. Richards High School, they set historic precedents for the underclassmen to follow.

Pictured in the foregoing pages of senior students, Class of 1966, are those individuals who, at time of Golden Year publication, were presumed eligible for graduation with this year's senior class. It must be noted, however, that some students who are eligible for diplomas are not pictured because they declined to have their portraits taken as prescribed or because they did not complete their fourth year of secondary education at Harold L. Richards but elected to complete their high school work at the end of three years and enrolled in colleges on the basis of their three-year record. The 1966 Golden Year Staff disowns any responsibility for verifying eligibility for graduation of any student by virtue of publishing these senior portraits, nor can it assume responsibility for the complete verity of the listed senior activity records since these are based on the individual student's claim of participation.

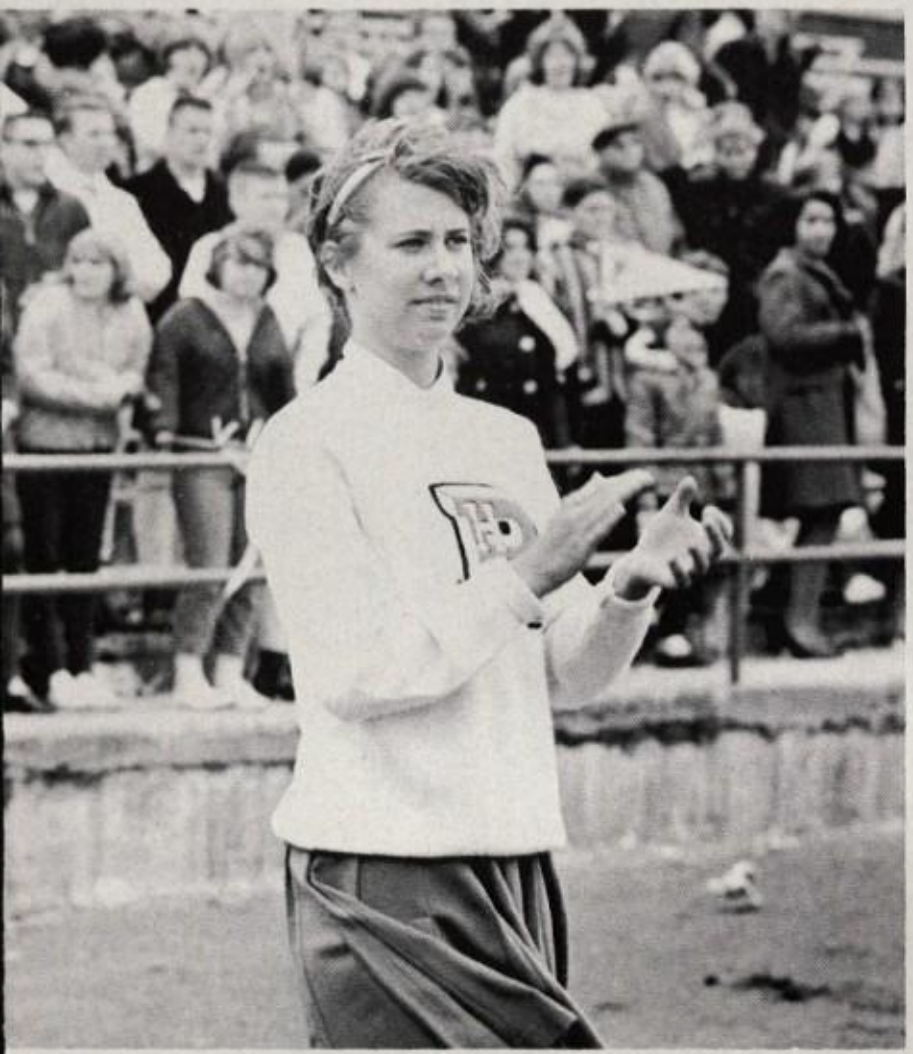
Underclassmen

The fast pace of classes, athletics, clubs, and special events set the tempos of the year at Harold L. Richards High School. Freshmen often found high school confusing at first, but quickly swung into the routine. Sophomores, already acquainted with high school life, enjoyed more fully the pleasures of extra activities. The tempos became even more lively for the juniors, who made plans for college and anticipated their senior year of high school. All underclassmen showed the enthusiasm, dedication, and ability which will make them outstanding in future life.



Juniors

With two years of high school experience behind them, the class of 1967 was well prepared to become the first junior class at the newly-built Harold L. Richards High School campus building. Assuming the responsibilities of upperclassmen, the juniors showed their willingness to participate in school life by serving as officers and members of the Student Council and other organizations. In the classroom, juniors were challenged by such diversified topics as American Revolutionary history and To Kill a Mockingbird. Although the juniors kept the theme of the junior-senior prom a secret until spring, they worked persistently to make a along-awaited highlight of the school year. The juniors had a challenging third year and are fully prepared for the step to the summit – their senior year.

The Sophomore Class elected capable officers in each building - Northeast and Northwest. Sophomores participated in school dances and carried out many school projects. The class officers of both buildings were able to co-operate in planning school events.

Many students gave thought to the possibility of going to college and its requirements. They were given the opportunity to consult their counselors and were given information and various college brochures and catalogues. Clubs were offered to encourage the sophomores to explore their interests and abilities.

The confused look on every freshman face during the first week of school changed considerably as the eager beginners dug in with such studies as algebra, science, English, foreign languages, business education, industrial arts and home economics. To fill the remainder of the day, many of them participated in such activities as chorus and band. Daily physical education classes, naturally, were included for the freshmen.

Although the freshmen were kept busy with their studies, they participated in student council, Girl's Club, etc. Some held a position as an officer in one of the clubs which met during the ninth period.

One of the most time consuming organizations was our athletic program. The freshmen participated in football, basketball, wrestling, bowling, baseball and tennis.

All in all, this years freshmen did a good job participating in social and sports activities, as well as their new and different academic life.

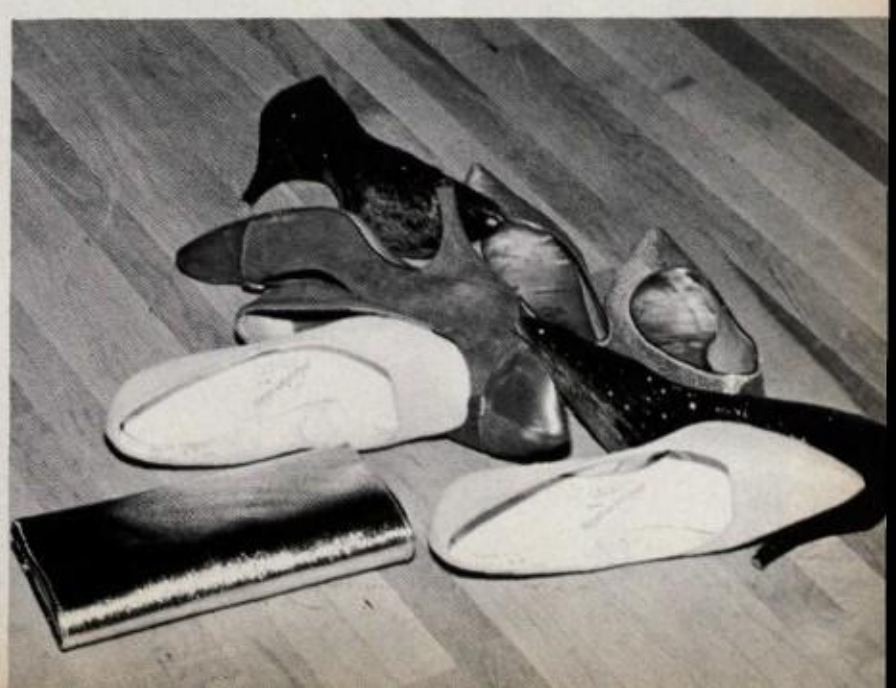
Activities



Student Life

The 1965-66 year was not an ordinary year for Harold L. Richards High School students. A new building, a new school name, and expanded educational opportunities were given to them. During the year as the school became more nearly complete and programs were developed, the students' activities centered around this new school. New clubs, intramural sports teams, and school dances offered much diversion. As the school took shape, a new school spirit and life grew as well. New traditions and spirit were set, and underclassmen will be sure to continue the pace for the following years.

The first students to step into the newly built Harold L. Richards High School were the juniors on August 31st. The seniors came the following day, September lst. The process of learning the school layout was not easy, and wrong directions were given frequently, but unintentionally. In spite of the incomplete building, students were orderly and accepted the inconveniences with good will. Life on the campus was both diverse and exciting. The students worked together so successfully this past year that it will be remembered by all of us throughout the coming years.

The Art Departments provided a

One of the most interesting academic electives is art. The Art Department of the Harold L. Richards Cluster was responsible for many of the decorations throughout the year. At Christmas the departments had displays and murals dedicated to the Spirit of Christmas. Other departments in the schools called on the art students to provide a creative touch for their special affairs.

"Art is a human activity having for its purpose the transmission to others of the highest and best feelings to which men have risen." Harold L. Richards students who had acquired an artistic ability found it a challenge in the new art departments. Foundations were renewed by the art instructors, and the students' art work moved ahead with brief sketches and then progressed into more complicated designs. As Robert Browning said, "One may do whate'er one likes in art; the only thing is to make sure one likes it."

Art students Barbara Rudolph and Nick Keane sketched a still life in Art III.

As Larry Kennelly posed in clown costume, Sue Smith tried her hand at figure drawing.

Janet Kumingo hung a modern still life in Northwest art room.

Mary Blomquist, Connie Langren, Barbara Krizek, Jean Fredricks and Linda Hense each worked on special assignments for Mrs. Morrison at Northwest Building.

Making a rough draft of a still life were Jo Anne Karner and Denise Ostertag.

Putting some animation into their puppets were (l to r) Sandy Randall, Connie Tongren, and Jonell Krick.

Mrs. Patricia Huss looked over a sketch book of one of her art students.

Mrs. Patricia Huss showed Kathy Nauer just how her sketch should look.

June Boyle and Linda Stone discussed a comptometry problem.

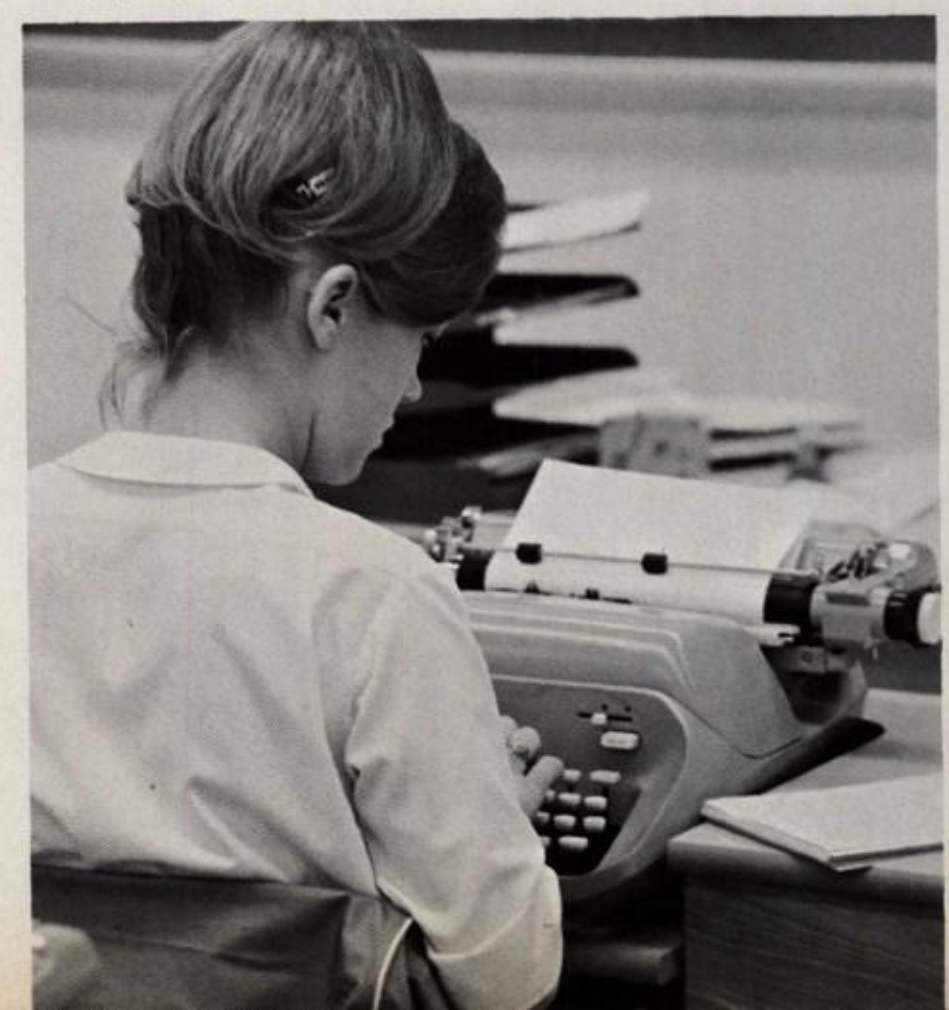
Pam Busse proofread a letter she typed in Mrs. Webster's advanced steno class.

It was a big year for the Harold L. Richards Business Education Departments. New typewriters, adding machines, dictaphones, and comptometers were installed for usage in a bigger and better curriculum.

The main goal of business education was to prepare its students for a business career after finishing high school. Besides the general business instruction it also offered a program of general education which would meet the needs and interests of all the students, even though they were not planning vocations specifically in the field of business. The Business Education Departments offered three courses to its students--general business course, a stenographic course, and a clerical course. Courses in notehand and typing were offered to students who were college bound.

Linda Hobson multiplied compound problems in Mrs. King's class.

Sandy Nyberg transcribed from her shorthand notes.



Mrs. King showed Sandra Zemait how to work a problem on her comptometer.

Mrs. Webster gave aid to Evelyn Lindquest as she transcribed from her shorthand notes.

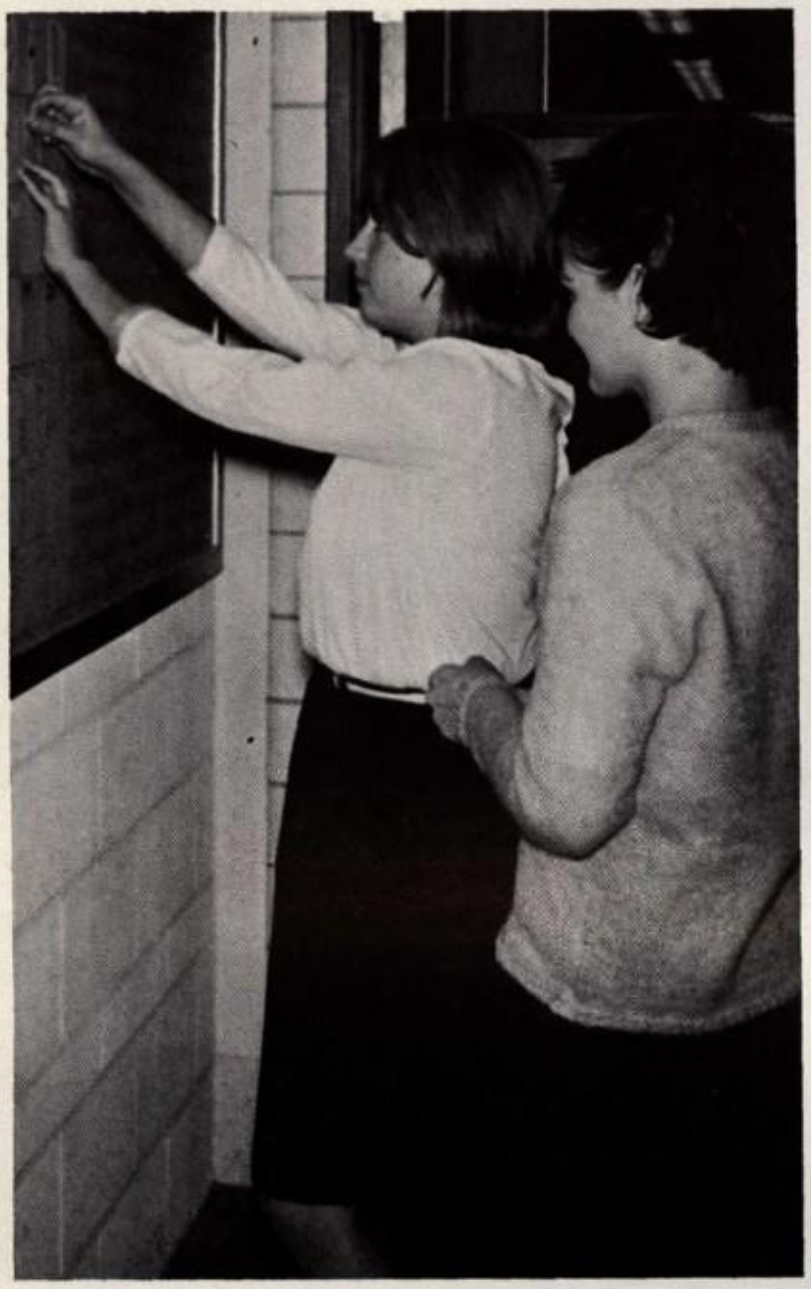
Students gained skills in Business Education

Vicki Sedlack, Patricia Lahey, Linda Granica, Marilyn James, Sharon Kinzel and Cathy Collins studied banking in Mr. Duggan's business training class.

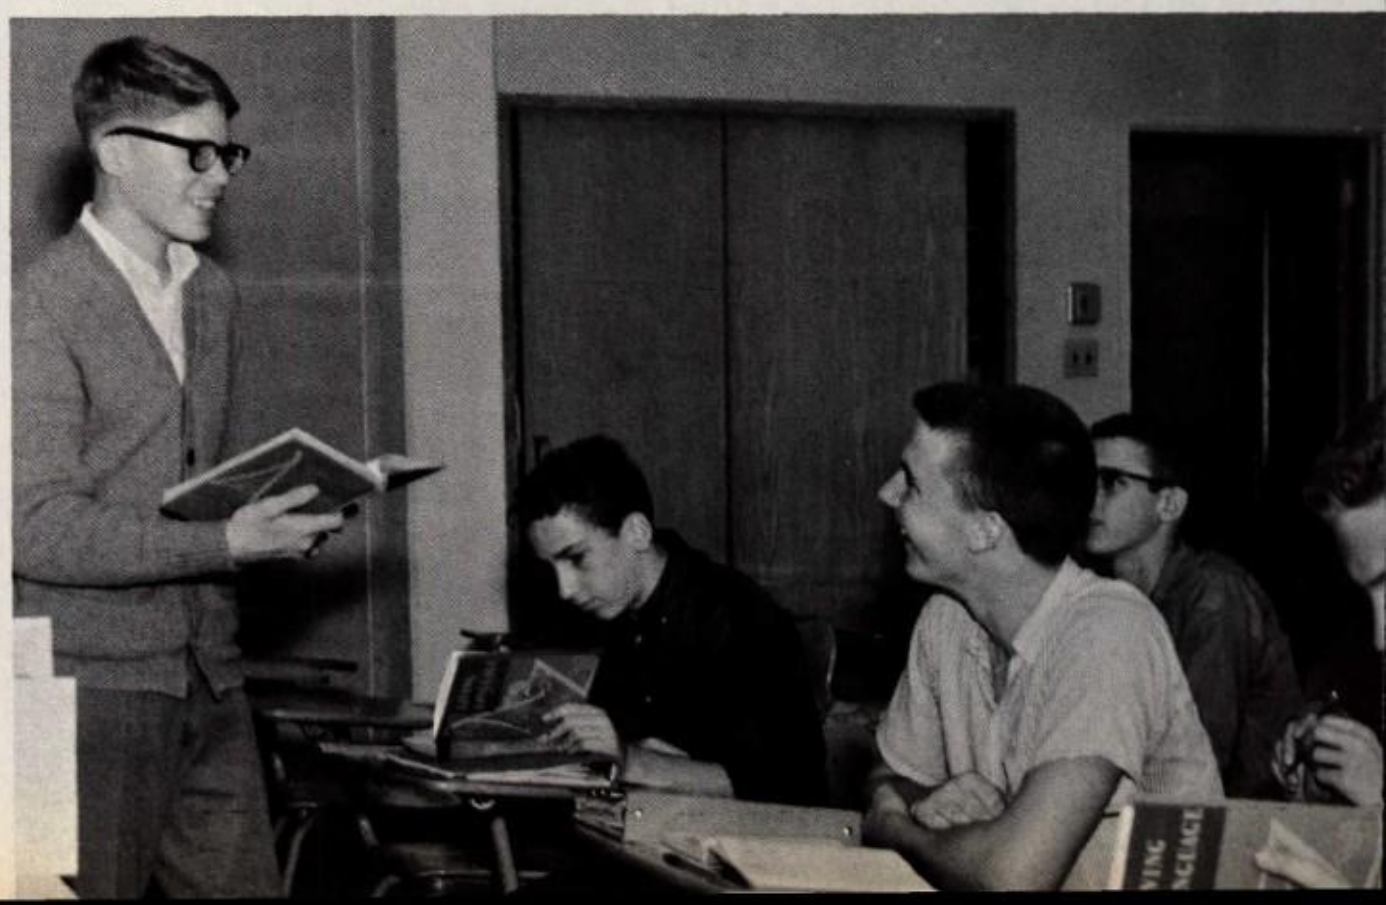
The English Department of the Harold L. Richards Cluster worked hard to prepare their students for future life in many ways. Both college-bound students and those who planned on entering the business world found the varied topics and information offered by the English courses not only helpful but very enriching. Aside from the usual tutelage in English grammar, the students were given a chance to explore the many forms of literature, both by reading and by doing their own composing.



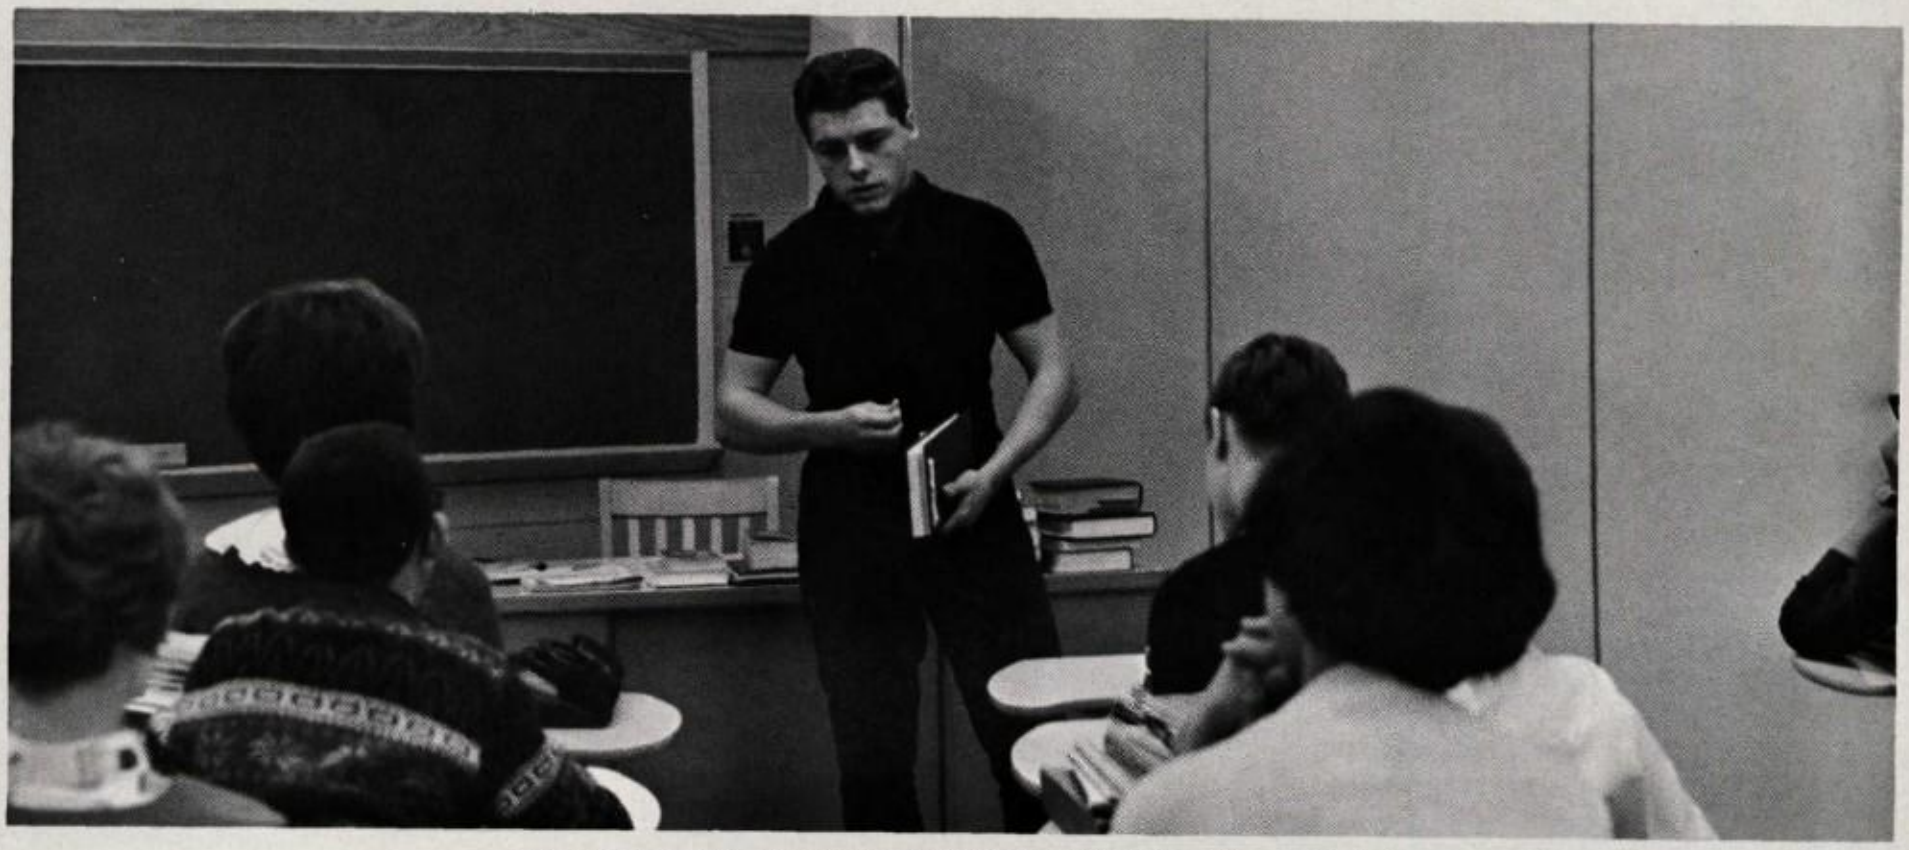
Barbara Gorz and Donna Staniszewski worked on a bulletin board display in Mrs. Bruce's 7th period English III class.

Diane Murray played the part of the second witch in Shakespeare's Macbeth during Mrs. Ridderhoff's 2nd period Prep English class.

Dave Roegner and Dennis Langland listened carefully as Craig Glassner led the class discussion in Mrs. Murray's 6th period English class at Northwest.



English developed the expressive arts.



The students of Mrs. Oppenheim's 2nd period English III class listened attentively as Dan Cullivan gave an oral book report.

Linda Headrick demonstrated her speaking ability in Mrs. Murray's accelerated English class at Northwest Building.

Russian was offered to interested juniors and seniors this year.

The Harold L. Richards Cluster offered a foreign language curriculum consisting of five languages: French, German, Spanish, Latin, and the newly-added Russian. The language students were encouraged to take the full four-year program in a language to give them more fluency in speaking and reading. In beginning courses, teachers stressed conversation more than anything else. Tape recorders were used in a new language laboratory to show the students their mistakes and their achievements.

Languages played an important part in our preparation for college. However, a language could be taken from one to four years, depending on the student's interest in it. Not only the language was taught, but also its history and some of its literature were brought into the course to make it more appealing.

Besides the usual courses taken in the classroom, the Foreign Language Departments offered clubs in which interested students participated.

Foreign languages developed linguistic

Grace Boal, Sheila Cloud, Barbara Balzell and Betty Bourell prepared ingredients for baking pastry.

Marilyn Dugan and Pam Skaggs showed proper methods of sifting flour while Darlene DeRuiter looked on.

Denise Ostertag worked busily on her sewing project.

Diane Benson looked at Pat Crowhurst's garment before the final touches were made.

Home Ec girls studied domestic skills.

Marsha Cohen and Barbara Jones learned the proper techniques of doing laundry.

Mrs. Havinga showed Carol Jensen the proper method used in sewing a zipper.

Harold L. Richards High School girls were prepared for a fine future in homemaking. In Clothing, girls were taught to mend, darn, and patch, and to make skirts, blouses, jackets and suits. Sewing projects varied from simple dresses to formal evening wear. Girls also learned the fabrics and the colors best suited to the individual.

In Food courses a girl learned how to prepare food and what each food adds to a person's nutrition. By following a basic diet every meal was made to give the full vitamin content needed.

Senior girls were offered a Career Girls class in which they learned how the modern teen may improve her homemaking. During the year sewing and cooking awards were made to girls outstanding in their field. The girls also participated in a written test of their cooking skills and information, the winner of which was offered the "Betty Crocker Award."

Cathy Pempek put a cake into the oven while Cindy Maletich looked on.

Marjorie Muzik explained the Lunch Evaluation Chart to class members under the guidance of Miss Denutte.

Timothy De Witt and Peter Krueger rechecked their figuring in drafting.

Bruce Rapp and Edward Grau set type in print shop.

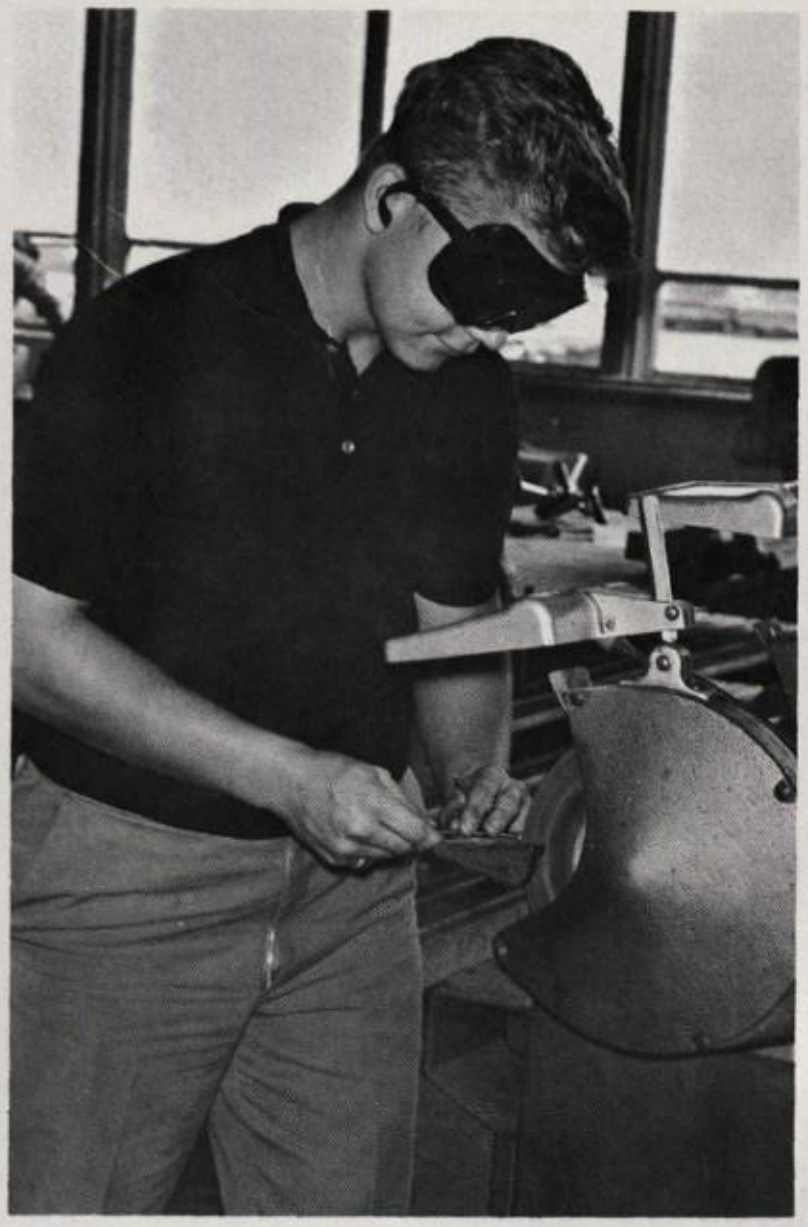
The Industrial Arts Department consisted of the various shop courses: wood, print, drafting, drawing, auto, sheet metal, machine shop and welding. These courses were designed to give the boys a working knowledge in choosing their future vocations.

Industrial Arts courses were valuable for students who planned to go into an engineering profession. Many professions today require some knowledge of the industrial arts field. A skillful reasoning, sharp eye, and steady hand are all needed in the industrial arts field. Although not all students took industrial arts courses for college preparation alone, a good many used their knowledge as a stepping stone to engineering and architectural schools. The boys learned how to work on tool and supply cabinets and how to handle electrical equipment.

Industrial arts was a pathway to a variety

Peter Kruis, Thomas Wood, and Robert Allaire made name signs in the wood shop at the Northwest Building.

Michael Spiotto experimented with the new wood washing basin in a campus woodshop.



Wayne Aanerud ground a tool die in the Northwest metal shop.

Jeffery Pruse and William McManus sanded their magazine racks in the Campus woodshop.

Finishing touches were made by Ronald Pawelczak on his table stand in woodshop.

Mr. Rodie showed Glenn Flinchum how to work wood on a lathe at the Northwest wood shop.

Bonnie Miller assisted Cathy Ickes in searching for a book.

Harold L. Richards

Harold L. Richards High School provided each building with a spacious, well-lighted, and quiet library. Students who wished admittance needed to have a library permit from one of their teachers. Our libraries not only contained books but also magazines and daily newspapers. Back issues of magazines were also available upon request. Since most students used the library for class reference work, many different reference books were available.

Although the Harold L. Richards Campus library was newly opened this year, its students were offered a great variety of subject matter. Many students used the library for reading enjoyment as well as for their studies. A great boon to the orderly supervision of the Library Department were its student aides, who helped sort books, helped other students, and kept library data in order.

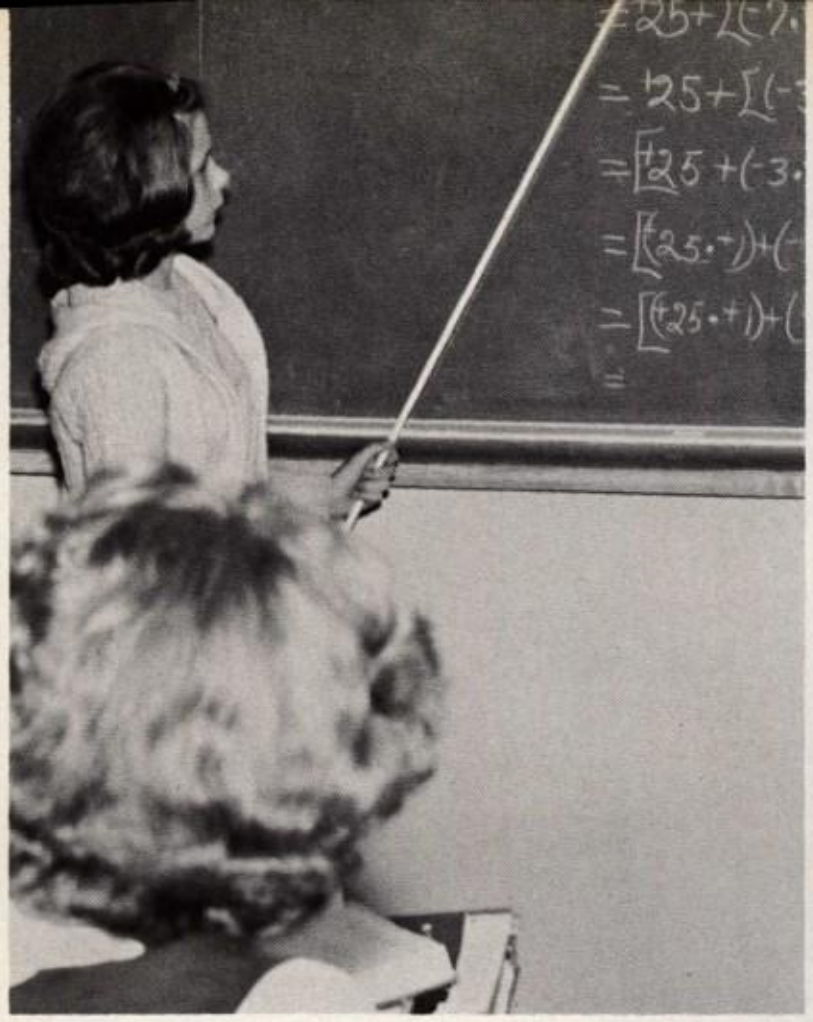
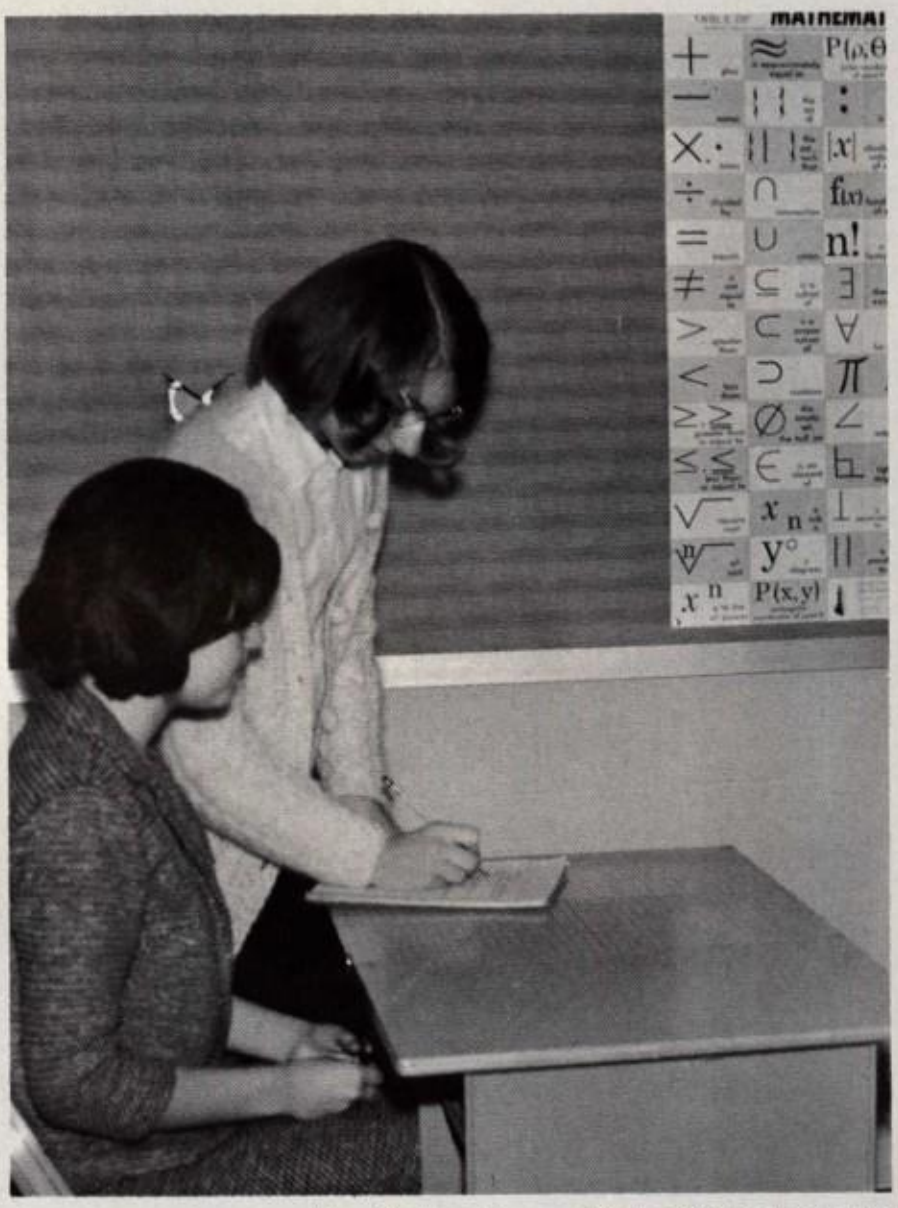
Mathmetics



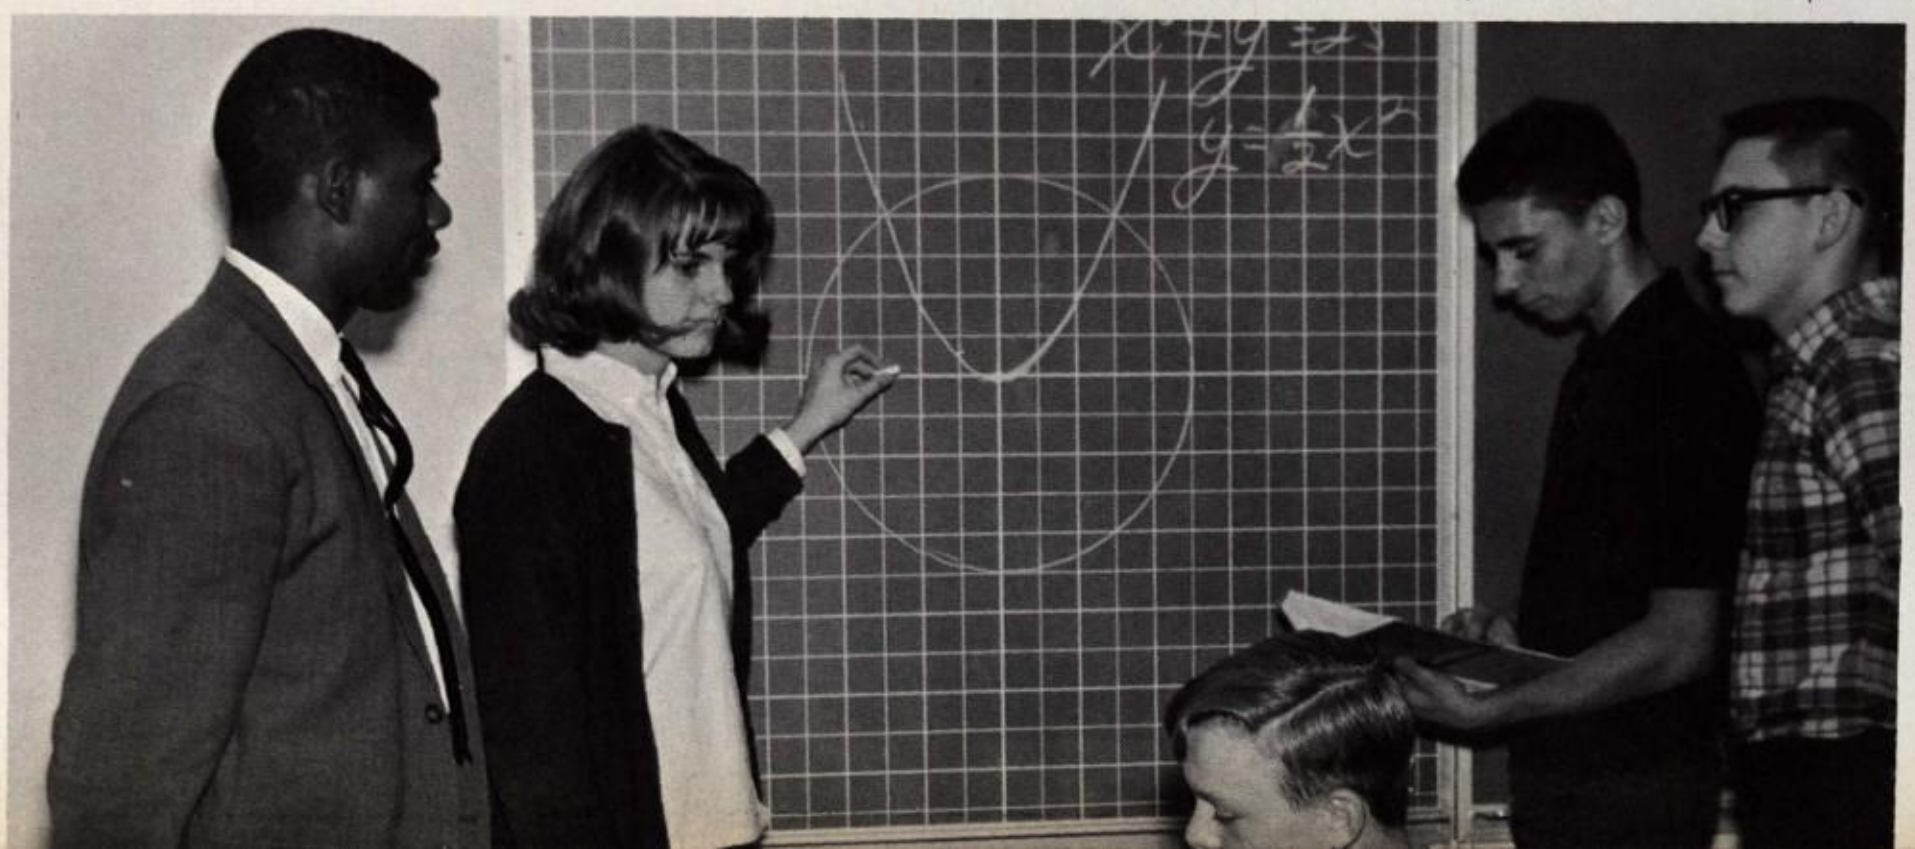
Roberta Gruntorad demonstrated a basic concept in Intergrated Algebra.

Working with geometric figure in Miss Shevokas' class were Terry Howe, Frank Stumpf, and Rich Beauchamp.

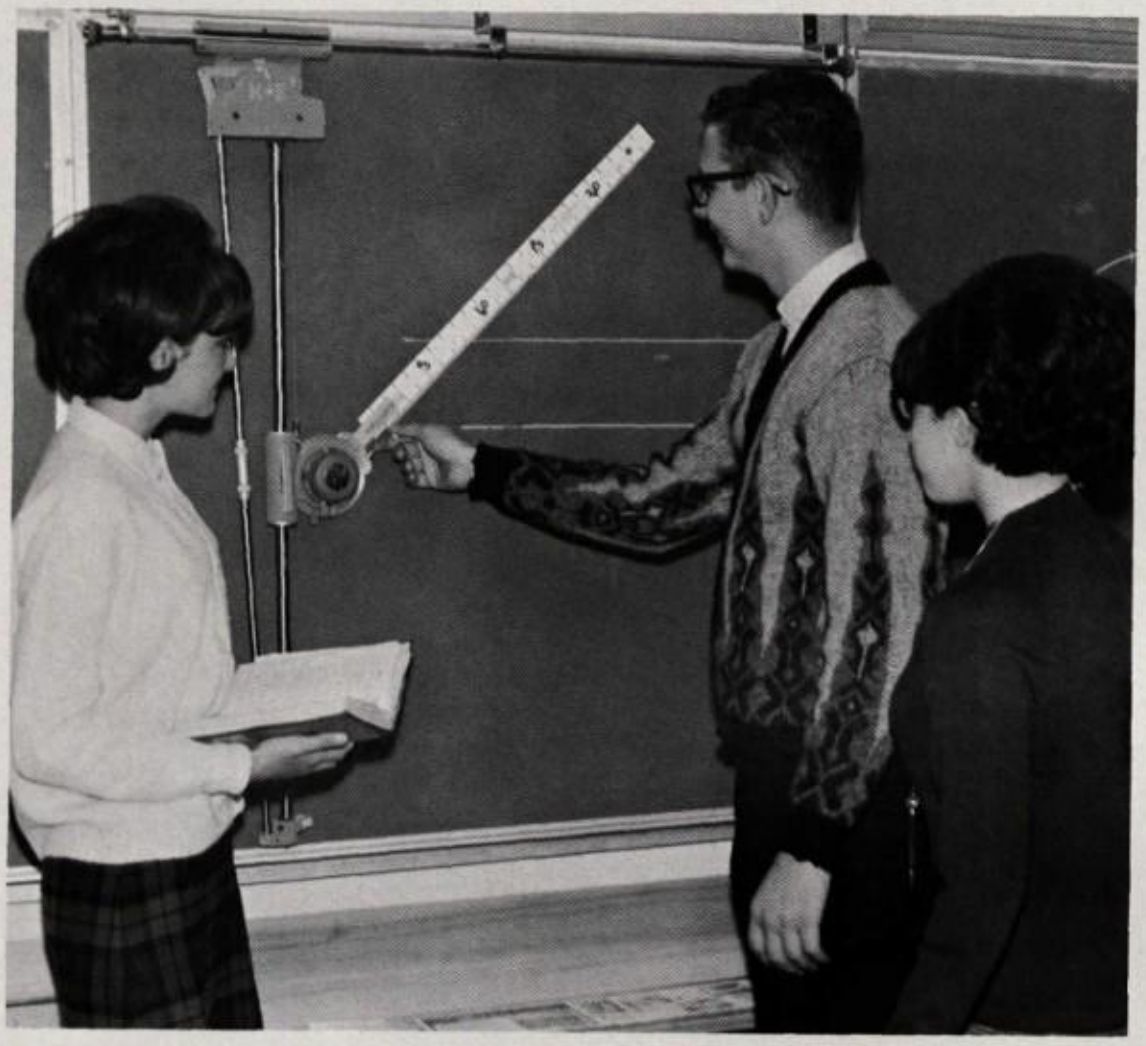


Demonstrating common mathematical symbols were Darlene Giesbrecht and Cathy Ickes.

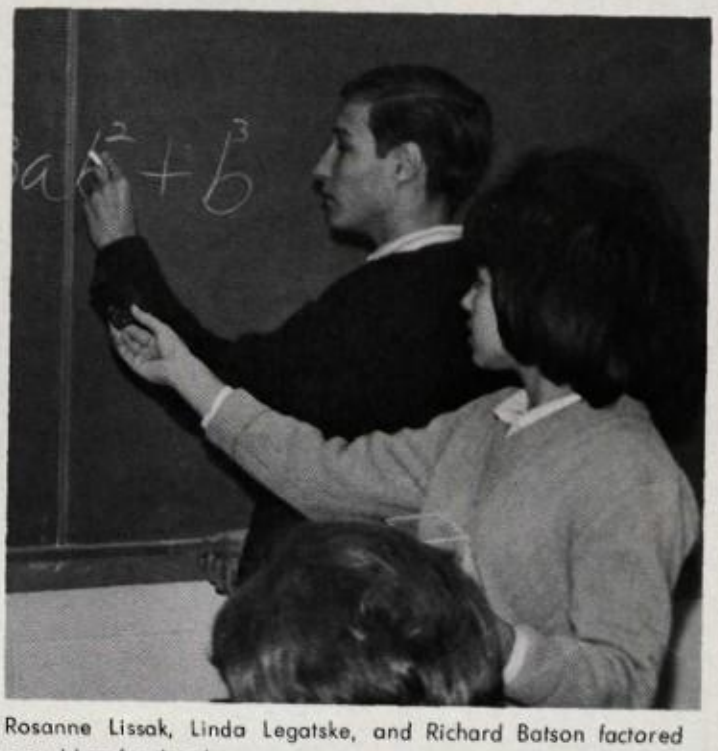
Mr. Barefield, Nancy Voorn, Gary Buzanis, and Guy Ortmann showed Len Fumi a parabola.



courses elevated numerical reasoning.



Pam Cripe, Randy Gilbert, and Michele Klein showed the class the equidistance of two parallel lines.

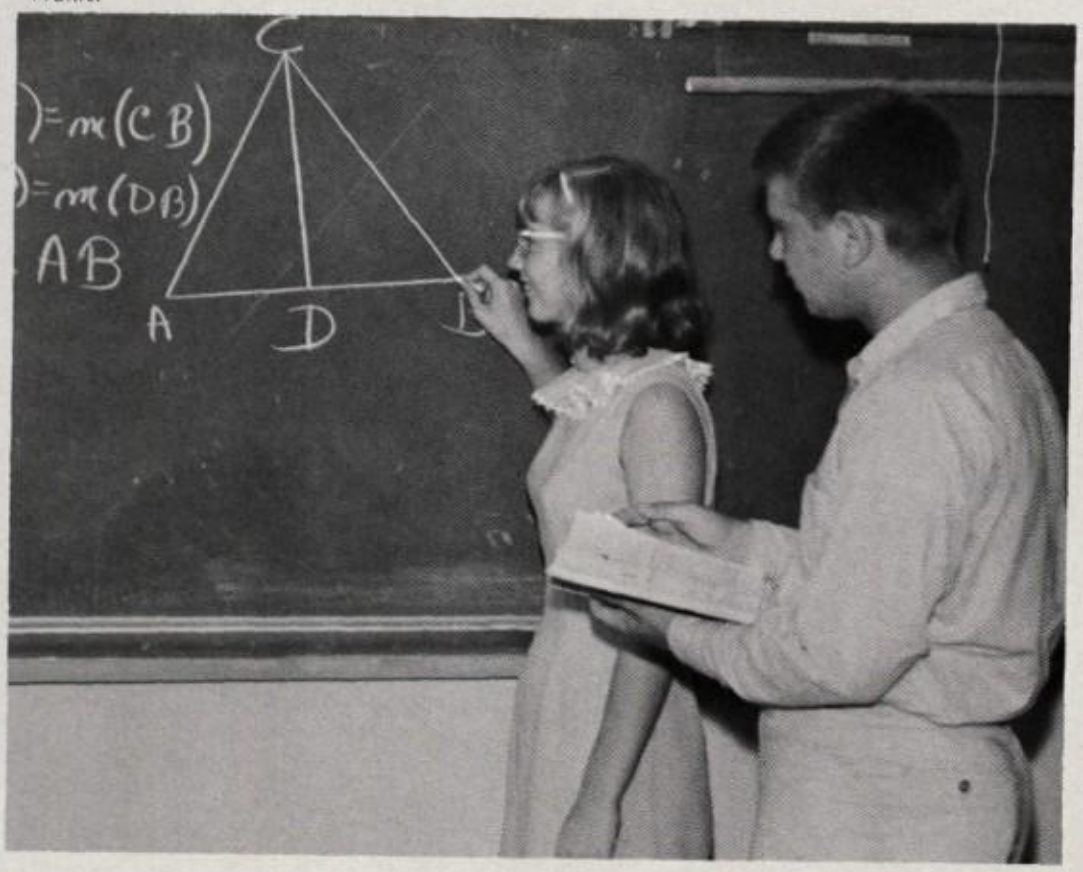


Rosanne Lissak, Linda Legatske, and Richard Batson factored a problem for the class.

The Mathematics Departments were an essential part of Harold L. Richards High School Cluster. No matter what a student decided to do after high school, he would need mathematics to be a fuctioning part of society. Students seeking a career in the science or engineering world especially continued their education in mathematics. Although only one year of mathematics was required, many students continued in these courses throughout high school to meet the requirements of colleges and technical schools.

The Mathematics Departments gave all students the opportunity to gain a useful knowledge of various numerical skills and principles. Teachers of algebra, geometry, trigonometry and other classes assigned students problems to exercise their minds. Problems aroused for both students and teacher the need to search for their solution.

Proving a geometry problem were Judy Williams and Tom Vranis.



Paul Mirecky explained to Mary Anson how to use a sphere in geometry.

harmony to academic life.

Mr. Idle, director of the Harold L. Richards Concert Band, and Jim Sparks, band president, presented Dr. Richards with a school jacket in behalf of the band.

Music, the universal language of all mankind, is an integral part of our cultural heritage and was offered in many forms to the students of the Harold L. Richards Cluster.

Beginning band members received expert training, not only in the use of their instruments but also the fundamentals of music. Experienced musicians were given the chance to express their talents in a wide variety of bands: marching band, concert band, stage band, varsity band, and orchestra.

For students whose talents were vocal rather than instrumental, there were a number of choirs and choruses. Both boys and girls who liked to sing joined mixed chorus and those with more talent were selected to be in A Cappella Choir. The Madrigal Singers, an extra curricular singing group, were made up of the section leaders from A Cappella Choir. Girls' Choir and Treble Choir were two organizations in which girls who enjoyed singing could participate. Members of G Clefs were chosen from these two choirs.

The A Cappella Choir of the new Harold L. Richards Campus building sang at the dedication ceremonies under the direction of Mr. Guenzler.

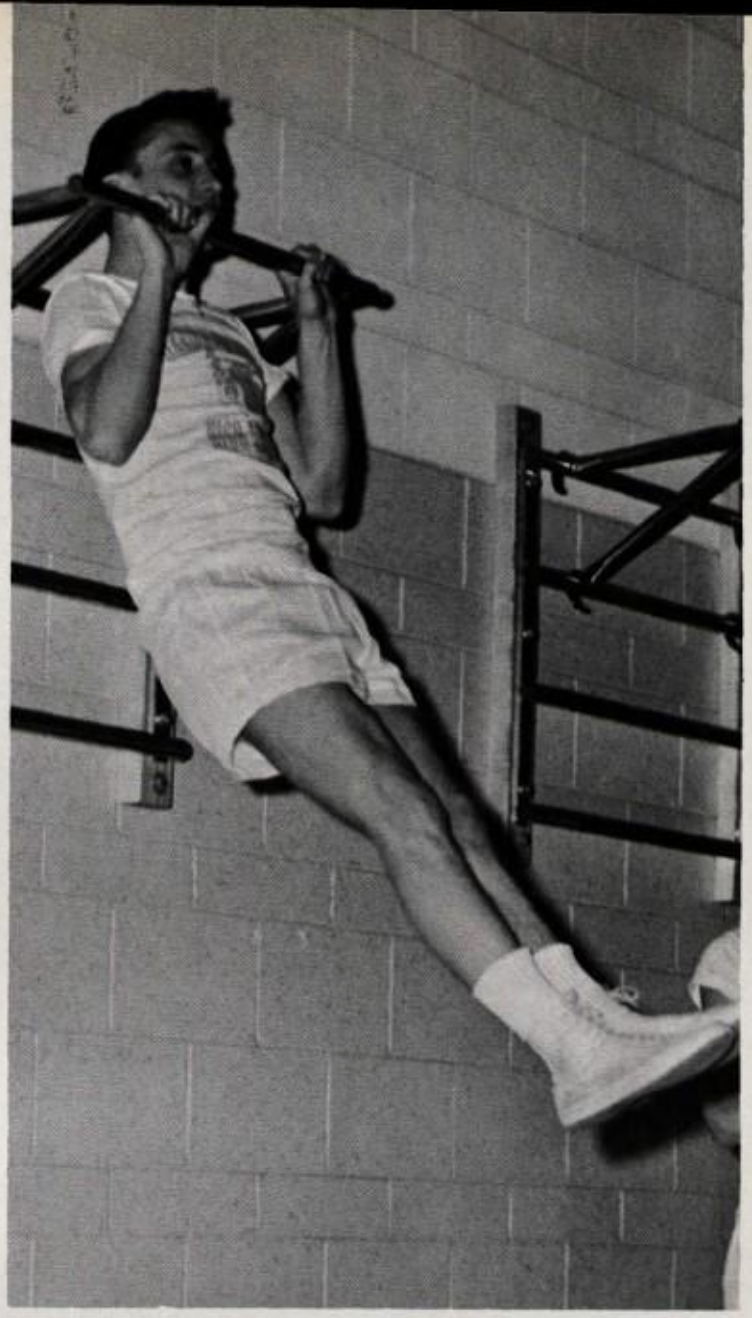
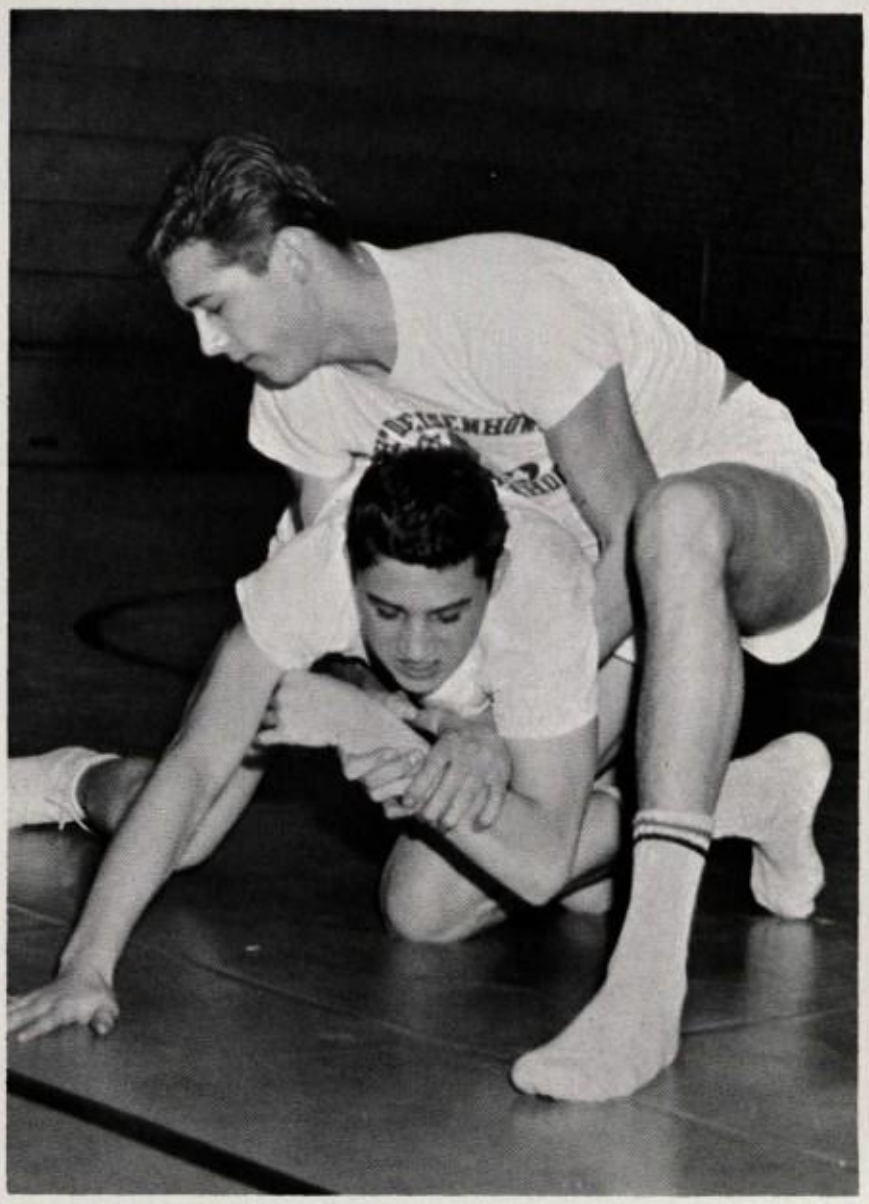
Throughout the year physical education classes developed the students' minds and bodies with a number of different selections. A variety of activities such as baseball, basketball, football, gymnastics, soccer, table tennis, and folk dancing were offered to the students. Students were required to take physical education courses during their four years of high school unless a disability kept them from doing so. Physical education offered an easy outlet for tensions built up during the course of a school day.



Chin-ups, as done by Scott Newman, were one of the requirements of the physical education program.

Wrestling, one of physical education's rigorous programs, was demonstrated by Eugene Hubacek and Jeffery Bilder.



Linda Legatski, Joe Delisi, and Bill Jahnke performed an experiment using magnesium oxide in chemistry class.

Science courses explored the

The main courses in the Science Departments were Biology, Chemistry, Physics, and College Chemistry. These last four courses were laboratory courses, with one period of class work in the laboratory two days a week.

Charts, diagrams of wind movements, graphs, rock collections, and lab experiments were some of the projects of the students. Science classes were designed to improve their minds and attitudes. Discussions were held in classes that concerned experiments conducted by the students.

Mr. Bond explained the rotation of the planets to Ricky Rayus and Sharon Beauchamp in his General Science course.

Sharon Disabato and Dan Boyd examined a group of hamsters used in the study of biology.

Pat Curran studied parts of the human body.

Loren Lesner prepared a slide for an experiment in Mr. Taramelli's biology class.

For the first time, Driver's Education was offered to students of District 218. Pictured are Karen Miller, Margie Nurse, Jim Tannura, and Mr. Racey.

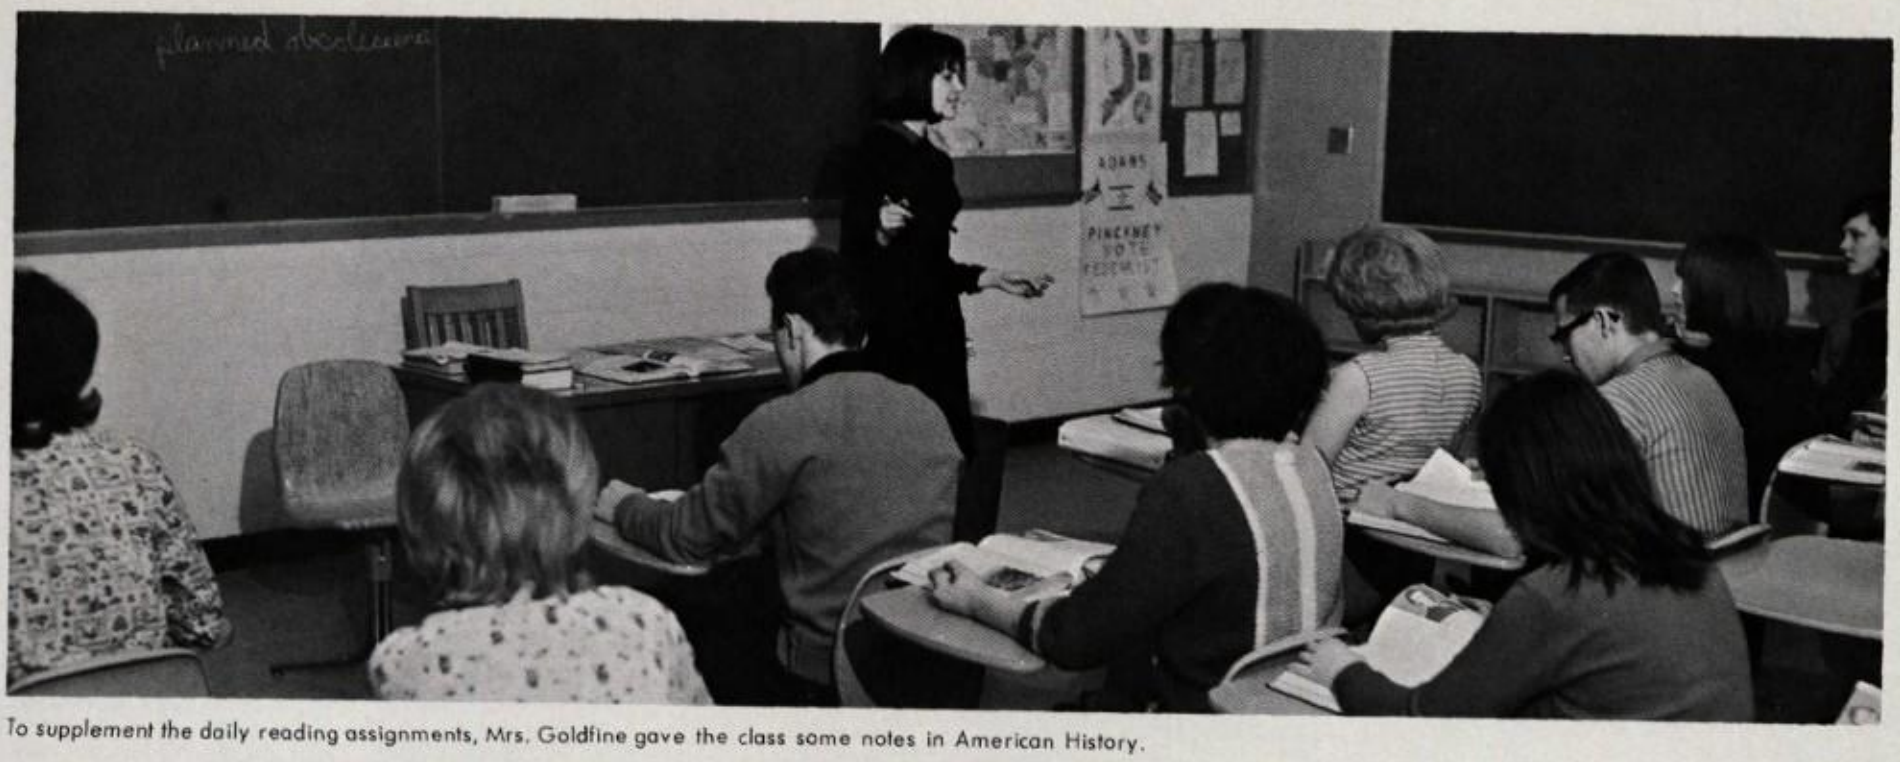
The Social Studies Department was an important part of the Harold L. Richards High School curriculum. The courses offered varied greatly in their content and points of study. The freshmen were offered Geography, Conservation, and Citizenship. Sophomores were offered all of these plus World History. In the junior year American History was required, but juniors could also take Current Affairs if they wished. As the student reached his senior year, two one-semester courses were required - American Government and Economics. Many seniors also took Psychology.

Am. History, Government and Economics

Nick Stamat, Steve Nagy, and Roger Stahlak studied American Government in Mr. Ladwig's eighth period calass.

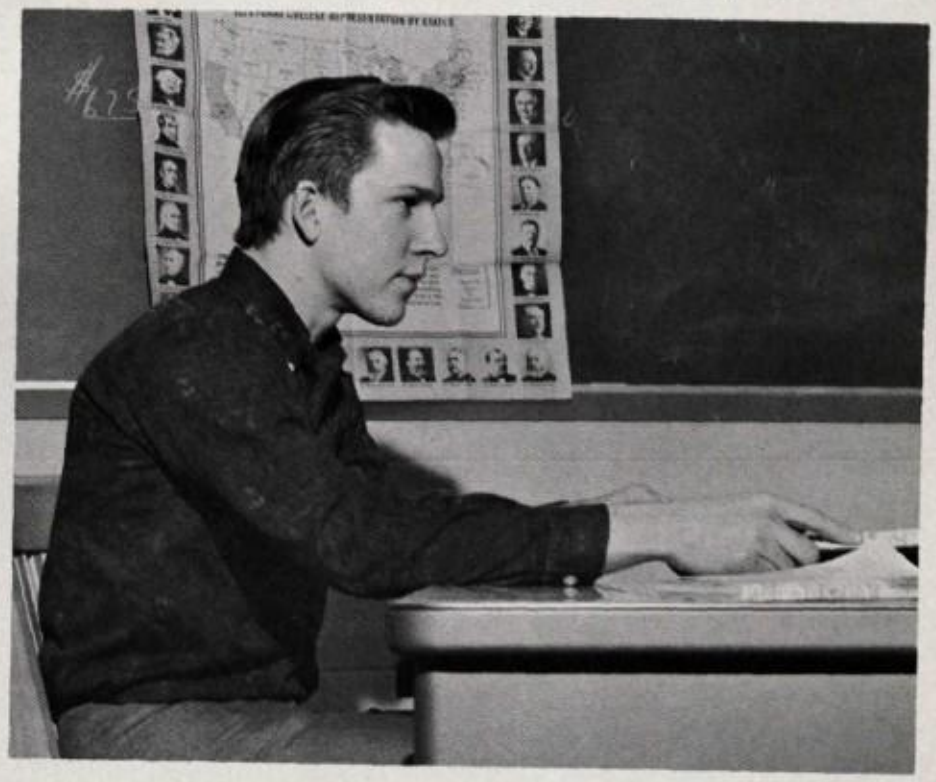
George De Vries and Donna Werderitch used the map to show the class Viet Nam, one of the trouble sports in the world today.

Kim Pries showed Richard Towner the position of Moscow, one of the communist capitals in the world.



To supplement the daily reading assignments, Mrs. Goldfine gave the class some notes in American History.

were required of all juniors and seniors.



Leading the class in a discussion of presidents in American History was Ken Tesar.

Mr. Hansen stopped to help Charlene Matrona with her government questions which were due at the end of the period.

Linda Bram and Nancy Husoyko presented a report to the class on the Indo-Chinese peninsula using both reference material and the globe.

Carol Blanck learned how to operate a switchboard at the Illinois Bell Telephone Company.

Mrs. Margaret Connelly, Division Manager of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., Evergreen Plaza, showed Carol Urbaniak, student learner, the proper method of tagging garments.

Work practice

Distributive Education was organized for the working students' benefit. The opportunity was given to prepare the students for a better position in distributive occupations. Knowledge and practice were given to students by managers and chief supervisors who were anxious to prepare these young adults for the rapidly changing world.

Linda Laschober demonstrated her selling ability to Mrs. Emily Agresto, Department Manager of Carson Pirie Scott & Co.

Mr. Chris Augle, Pharmacist of the Rotunda Drug Store, observed Mike Lund's technique.

Students who prepared to board the bus for the annual Area VI Conference for Distributive Education were: Carol Urbaniak, Donna Fabiano, Linda Laschober, Linda Bulow, Carol Blanck, Mr. Wirth, Co-ordinator; Mike Lund, Ray LaCombe, Dave Templeton, Joe Sankey.

Donna Fabiano displayed sweaters in Lerner's Shop in Evergreen Plaza.

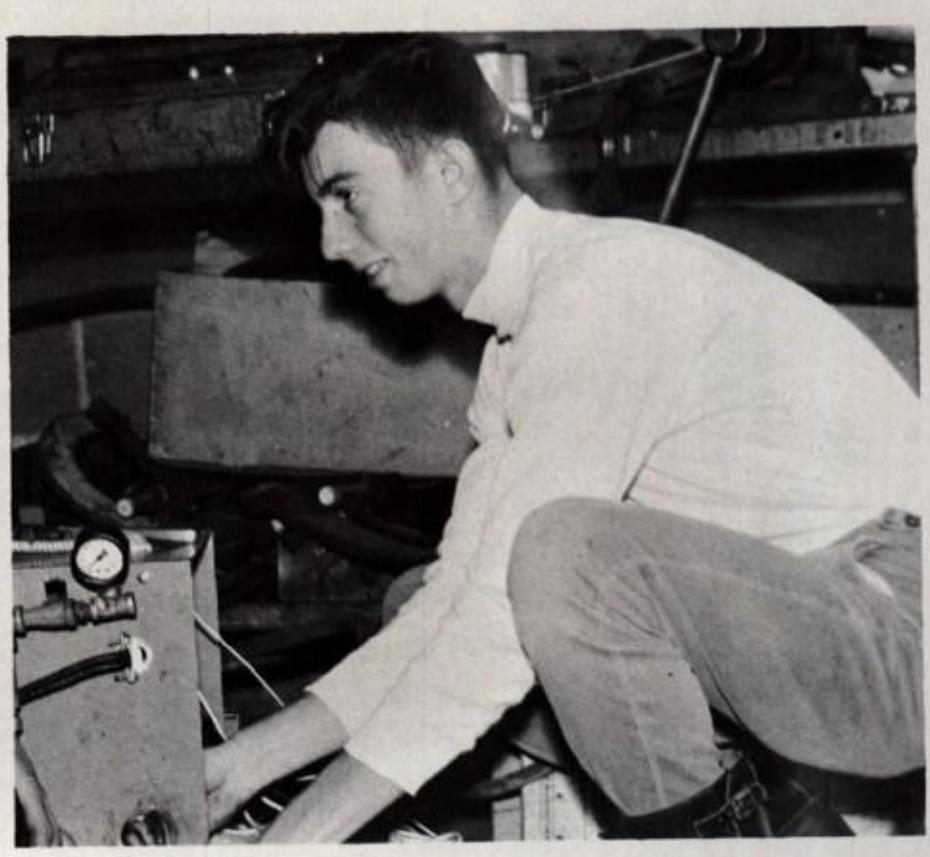
Jo Lynn Mooi waited on a customer at the Palos Coffee Shop in Palos Heights.

Diversified Occupations combined work

The Harold L. Richards High School Cluster participated in a program of part-time work and study. Sometimes it was easier to see the importance of study when there was constructive work to give it immediate usefulness.

Diversified Occupations trained students who were eager to enter industrial, electrical or other highly accelerated fields. Some of the instructors of the D.O. students were once in a system similar to ours.

The D.O. students sold pennants to students and teachers to start our first football season. Candy was also sold to raise money for expenses for the current year.



Daniel Dugan worked on a Steam Jenny in the Gamco Company.

Bruce Santomarco worked on a bridge for false teeth while Mr. Aldo Ricaridini, his supervisor, watched.

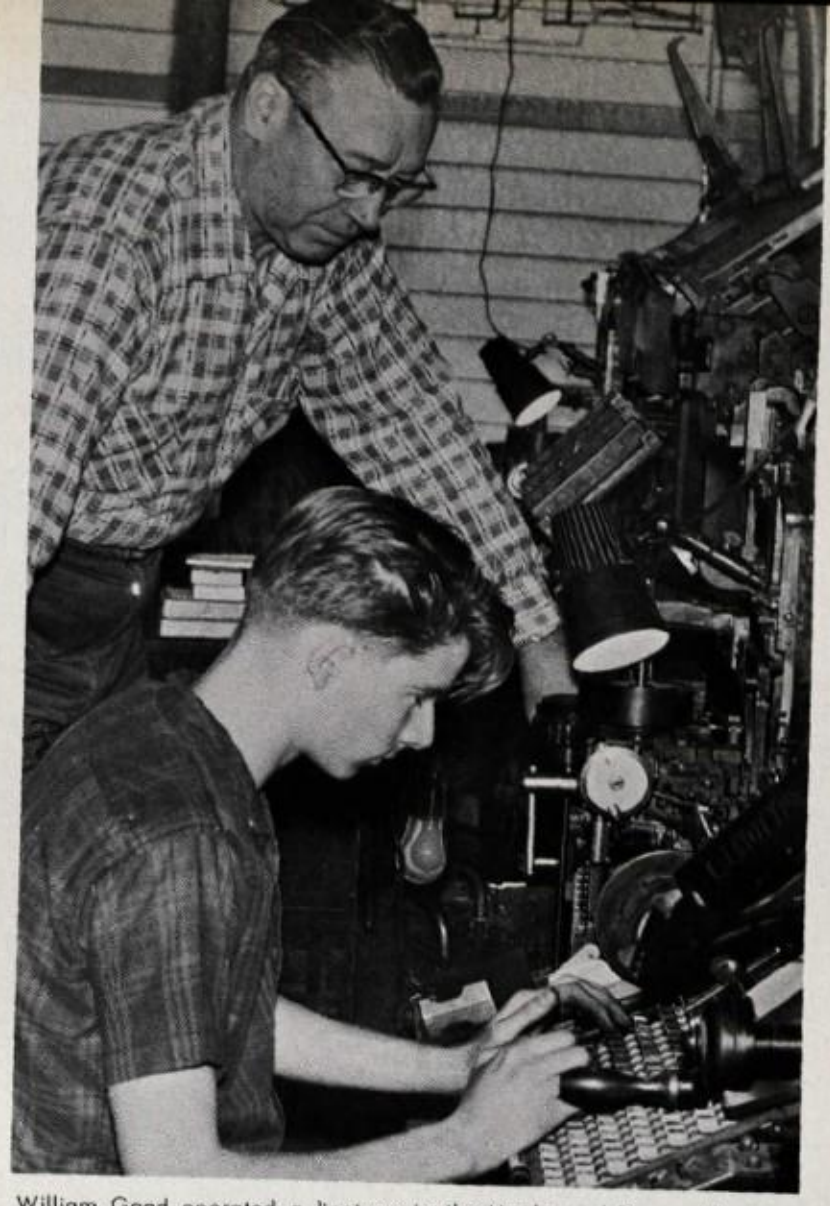
Daniel Nutting put bearings on rods to be used on conveyor belts at Velten & Pulver Inc.



William Good operated a linotype in the Maplewood Press while Mr. Robert Campbell, supervisor, looked on.

Norman Schlink taped paper on a car before the paint job at Fox Auto Rebuilders while Mr. James Vendel watched.

Angeline Pyper experimented with a new hair style for a customer in Mary's Hair Styling Shop.

Wendell Hall stacked paper at the Pepper Press Co.

Mr. Jenkins helped Elaine Thompson plan for further education after graduation.

Miss Helen Stevens was always ready to help any student with any problem.

An excellent counseling staff was provided to help the student become adjusted to his environment and to decide on the course of study for the future. Although helpful counseling was done by every member of the faculty for all students in his classes, in certain areas more specific help was needed by the students. Counselors particularly selected for this purpose were always on hand to give advice and guidance. Whether it was a problem concerning school work or in student welfare, social or personal, the students were free to discuss their problems with the counselors.

Counseling and Specia

Kathy Roufs received helpful advice for the future from Mrs. Dorothy Derks, counselor at Campus building.

Mr. Malm took a personal interest in the problems of the students.

Carmella Narolweski, Willard Schmaltz, and David Kruizenga studied diligently under the careful guidance of Mr. Bruce, their instructor at Northeast.

Education guided students.

Wayne Stancik, John Palaggi, Willard Schmaltz, and Eleanor Benbow learned the basic structure of a sentence in Mr. Bruce's special education class at Northeast.

Students enrolled in our special education classes followed the same daily schedule as all other students. They participated in regular school activities in those subject areas in which they could benefit by sharing experiences with other students, such as physical education, home economics, typing, general mathematics, music, art, and vocational training for the many vocations offered by our shop program.

They received instruction in basic academic subjects in a self-contained classroom. Here, reading, spelling, and mathematical skills were improved. Good citizenship and social studies were also a part of their curriculum, as well as health and the fundamentals of general science.

Their future depended largely upon individual preparation by their teachers. The teachers saw their potential and did the utmost to make that potential grow into a reality. The teachers also had the opportunity to guide and participate in their vocational training. Untiring efforts were put forth by the teachers and counselors to place these young men and women in a part-time work-study program while still in school and to help them progress to a full-time job after graduation.

Mrs. Middaugh inspected the throat of Thomas Marsh at Campus II.

A well-equipped nursing staff was maintained at the Harold L. Richards Cluster, where students obtained aid and advice in matters pertaining to any minor illness. The school nurse in each building was on duty at all times and available for emergencies. Although more serious illnesses were referred to local physicians, the nurse was usually able to give sufficient help to those students who needed it. Harold L. Richards High School was proud of its competent nursing staff, and parents of students felt secure knowing that any problems concerning their children's health would be handled with the utmost care and skill.

Non-teaching personnel contributed to the

At Northwest, Mrs. Schultz recorded student's ills, including Linda Phelan's.

Mrs. Richardson, Northeast nurse; taught Sherry Stillwell, Cheryl Raulo, Sue Dahl, and Kathy Scott how to make various types of bandages.

Bus service was available to Harold L. Richards High School students daily. There were buses each morning and afternoon. For home sports events, buses were also provided. There was no extra charge for bus service to and from school. For special events or field trips, bus rates were nominal. Bus drivers were on the job as early as 6:45 A. M. They showed consideration for the students and were skilled in mechanics.

Lunch time at Harold L. Richards High School buildings kept the cafeteria staffs busy for several hours. The cafeteria staffs enjoyed their new facilities and stainless steel equipment. The dining sections of the cafeterias were quite roomy. Functional chairs and tables provided comfortable surroundings for the students. Because most students live too far away from school to go home for lunch, our schools provided a well-balanced menu each day. A nutritious hot meal was served, and a snack bar was open for students who did not wish a full meal. The cafeteria was a popular place to meet one's friends for food and news of the day.

The main offices in the newly-constructed buildings were the heart of all school activities during the past year. The office staff helped organize class schedules, activities, accounts, transportation, orders for departmental equipment, and helped identify students in yearbook pictures. Our schools could not exist without the competent and efficient office staffs who cooperate so well with the administration, the teachers, and the students.

ORGANIZATIONS

The formation of student organizations was quite a challenge this past year. The sponsors of the clubs had a big and important job on their hands. The electing of officers and the making of rules had to be done wisely and carefully. The purpose of each club had to be determined. The organizations being formed had to be suitable and appropriate for students' interests and needs.

The newly established organizations should be ready to celebrate their formal beginnings next fall. This past year's sponsors were successful in establishing sound foundations for tomorrow's student organizations.

The organizations were designed for those who wanted to put opportunities for varied experience and service into their school activities. Each person was able to find a deeper meaning in life.

To become a member of the Mu Alpha Theta Club, a student not only had to be exceptional in mathematics, but also had to have a sense of creative writing. Each member submited articles to the Math Journal which was published jointly with Dwight D. Eisenhower High School. Only a select few were admitted to the club. The outstanding event of the year was the initiation of the new members in the spring.

One prerequisite for acceptance into Mu Alpha Theta was active membership in the T.A.G. Club. T.A.G. stands for Trigonometry, Algebra, and Geometry, and any junior or senior interested in mathematics could join. This year the club's goal was to establish a constitution. Next year's calendar was also discussed.

Mrs. Beattie, Mrs. Homerding, Mr. Homerding, Carol Homerding, and Dr. Harold L. Richards were present when Mr. Johnson, senior principal, gave Stefania Gallerani, our A.F.S. student from Italy, her schedule for her year at Harold L. Richards High School.

The I.S.E. Club held a reception for Stefania Gallerani in order for the faculty to get better acquainted with her. Carol Homerding, Stefania Gallerani, Mrs. Beattie, and Mr. Hansen joined in a toast to Stefania and her successful year at Harold L. Richards.

Stefania Gallerani and Carol Homerding studied together, for they had many classes which were similar.

To let the student body get better acquainted with Stefania Gallerani, the Girls' Club sponsored an A.F.S. assembly. The four speakers were Carol Homerding, Stefania Gallerani, Linda Sarracino, and Janis Wanland.

Stefania Gallerani was our exchange student from Falconara, Italy. While attending Harold L. Richards High School, Stefania took an active part in school activities and joined the International Student Exchange Club, Girls' Club, Fine Arts Club, French Club, and Drama Club.

Upon returning to Italy, Stefania planned to attend one more year of high school and to become an interpreter.

The Student Council was composed of students elected at large in the beginning of each school year. One of the main jobs of the Student Council was to plan a variety of activities. The council sponsored dances, sock hops, and fad days. Because this year was the first for our school, the names of the newspaper and yearbook were selected by them and then voted upon by the student body.

Drama presented plays.

The Drama Club was responsible for the junior and senior class plays. Any one interested in acting or directing was able to join.

The Speech Club was established to help students develop basic speech skills and to gain poise and experience. This year's debate team had many victories.

Members of the Varsity Debate Team were Janie Stevens, Scott Hanawalt, Pat Dillon, Henry Tkachuk.

Our debaters won the first prize trophy for Harold L. Richards High School in the Proviso West Tournament. Presenting the trophy to Mr. Lowe were Pat Dillon, Debbie Dumais, Bob Pearson, Larry Kennelly.

The "It's Academic" members were Natalie Lewis, Bruce Oltman, Christopher Winslow, Arthur Bunce, William Bostrom, and Jeanne Knoll.

Jeanne Knoll, Natalie Lewis and Arthur Bunce presented a one hundred dollar U.S. Savings Bond to Mr. Lowe. Mrs. Holding supervised the "It's Academic" team.

The students of "It's Academic" were chosen from those with high scholastic ability. Their ability to recall facts was witnessed on the program, "It's Academic". Preparations for the organization of the team began early in the fall. Mrs. Holding and Mr. Dougherty, with the help of government, mathematics, and English teachers, supervised the members of the team.

One of the merriest and maddest stage romps ever portrayed was the Senior Class Play, "Ten Little Indians." It was a murder mystery with comic touches about the mishaps of ten people on a lonely island. The play proved to be a rollicking smash. The leading characters were supported by a cast who showed great acting ability. The audience rewarded the efforts of the cast with their roars of laughter and applause. Screams of horror were heard occasionally as the characters were murdered one by one by the unknown killer, and the thrilling climax was guaranteed to scare even the most hardened mystery fan.

To come to the aid of the classroom teacher, the members of the Pro Club operated the movie and slide projectors. At their meetings the boys learned how to operate and maintain the equipment they used. Even though some of the boys saw the same movie eight times a day, each of the members enjoyed the club. Mr. Hill was the sponsor of the club.

The PAPS Club set up and operated the public address system for special events held in the school. During the meeting the boys learned to service and maintain the equipment. These boys were studying audio-electronics and PAPS Club experience may some day help them choose a career.

band performed at games.

The percussion section of the Harold L. Richards Marching Band initiated new uniforms and drums.

The members of the Harold L. Richards Marching Band not only possessed musical talent but physcal agility as well. To play an instrument was one thing, but to be able to play well while marching was another. The members of the Harold L. Richards Marching Band showed their ability to execute both successfully as they performed in various parades throughout the year.

The drum majors led the Harold L. Richards-Dwight D. Eisenhower Marching Band as they marched in the Dwight D. Eisenhower Homecoming Parade.

Student aides

Northeast held well deserved pride for its choral groups. They not only gave students a chance to express musical talent but provided entertainment for the student body as well. However, their performances did not stop with the students. At various concerts throughout the year they sang for parents, faculty, and any one who liked good music. With songs ranging from sacred to secular they showed that a school can be a place of entertainment as well as knowledge.

Semi-Formal announced King and Queen.

The Student Council sponsered a semi-formal dance, the Fall Frolic. A king, a queen, and two runners-up of the dance were selected by the students and announced at the dance.

Third runners-up at the Fall Frolic were Bob Evans and Pat Palmer.

Terry Thomas and Karen Zika served Bob Somerville and Debbie Murray at the Fall Frolic.

Carol Warren handed Ken Karlson's date, Ruth Jackson, a bid at the Turnabout Dance.

Girls asked guys to be their escorts.

Geoffery Jeffery picked out a flower for his date, Stefania Gallerani, an A.F.S. student from Italy.

This year's Turnabout Dance, combined with Dwight D. Eisenhower High School, was held in the Harold L. Richards gym. Both buildings' Girls' Clubs sponsored the dance. Proceeds of the dance went into the fund for sponsoring next year's foreign exchange student.

The Turnabout Dance was a huge success as proved by these couples dancing to the music of Ed Johnson and the Mayfairs.

Junior- Senior

Bill popped the question: "Diane, will you go to the Prom with me?"

Now that Diane had accepted, she had to make a decision on "the" dress to wear.

While Diane was out choosing her dress, Bill went to the Heights Flower Shop in Palos Heights and picked out her corsage. Mr. Carl Gambotz, Jr., owner, showed Bill a wide selection from which to choose.

Mr. Murray greeted Bill at the door when he arrived to pick up Diane.

Prom was the most gala event of the year.

Diane, wearing a lovely new gown, descended the stairs to meet Bill.

Diane admired Bill's choice of flowers.

As they prepared to leave for the Prom, Bill helped Diane into her coat.

The theme of Harold L. Richards High School's first Annual Junior-Senior Prom was "Tropical Splendor." Decorations and refreshments were planned by the class committees around this central theme.

Held on the evening of May 14th, the Prom, attended by hundreds of elegantly dressed couples, was the biggest social event of the year.

Diane Murray and Bill Hopf were selected to do a series of photos on the events leading up to the"big night".

Their arrival at the Prom marked the start of a perfect evening for Diane and Bill.

Daughters dated Dads.

One of the skits at the Dad and Daughter Date Night presented a typical day at our unfinished new school. Those who participated were: Sue Anderson, Diane Dado, Pat Palmer, Marie Guzzo, Diane Murray, Linda Sarracino.

Terry Russert pinned a boutoniere on her dad at the Girls' Club Dad and Daughter Date Night.

"Our Pops are Tops" was the theme for the Girls' Club Dad and Daughter Date Night. We girls played host to our pops for an evening of entertainment followed by refreshments. Afterwards most pops treated their "dates" to a soda before calling it a night.

As part of the entertainment the daughters sang to the dads.

After the entertainment in the gym dads and their dates were served refreshments in the cafeteria.

Seniors became grads.

Paula Mickelson adjusted Sue Pommering's mortarboard before the evening graduation ceremony.

The first graduation of Harold L. Richards High School seniors was held on Thursday evening, June 2, 1966. The seniors wore goldand white gowns and gold mortarboards with red and white tassels. Parents and friends of the graduating students filled the gymnasium to view the commencement ceremony, which was highlighted by the presentation of diplomas. This last and greatest event of the year culminated the high school careers of over 350 seniors.

Marianne Patterson, Diane Stelzer, and Randy Gunther examined the gold graduation gowns.

Sue Pommering was ready to join the procession of graduates.

Seniors tried on gowns to insure proper fit. Phyllis Gregory helped Diane Stelzer with the adjustments.

Golden Year recorded the story

The production of the first volume of the Golden Year required much more than a pile of pictures and a few typewritten captions. It required experience and skills which the staff developed during the seven month publication course. Cooperation and teamwork were essential to the completion of the yearbook. Equally important factors were imagination, determination, and energy. Most of all, publication of the Golden Year demanded a countless number of hours. The staff often sacrificed lunch hours and study periods to work on sketching layouts, writing copy, and typing the finished pages. Mrs. Bruce, adviser to the staff, co-ordinated their efforts to attain the high standards set by the national Scholastic Press Association.

Sue Pommering and Paula Mickelson cropped pictures in the Golden Year staff room.

Phyllis Gregory and Randy Gunther consulted Mrs. Bruce about layout designs.

Athletics

. . . "But we build the ladder by which we rise." This year Harold L. Richards High School athletes were building the foundation for future outstanding teams as well as the idea that a strong body was as important as a strong mind.

Most of Harold L. Richards High School students became active in the athletic programs such as football, basketball, wrestling, track, cross-country and basball. Students were accepted for these sports by tryouts. Each student was given a fair chance to prove just what he could do.

The Harold L. Richards High School Bulldogs had a rugged baptism but prospered in experience and preparation. Their courage and fortitude were marking the way for future athletes. Honors were given to the athletes for their great exhibition of team effort and school spirit.

The pep assemblies gave the Richards Bulldogs the spirit they needed to go out and fight their opponents. Most of their opponents had had more experience and thus gave the Bulldogs quite a battle. The Bulldogs fought harder each time for the glory of Harold L. Richards High School.

The varsity and sophomore cheerleading squads, sponsored by Miss Lauritzen, vigorously conducted the cheers of the crowd at every game during the year. Their lively cheers were backed by the roars of the student body, who displayed an enormous amount of school spirit. The Goldenaires, a precision marching team of 32 girls, was sponsored and taught by Miss Nystrom. The group met during zero period each day, and its activities took the place of regular physical education classes. Besides practicing their precise marching routines, the girls also participated in a variety of active games and sports. In addition, the Goldenaires served as usherettes at such important events as the dedication of the Campus II building, P. F. A. meetings, and the class plays.

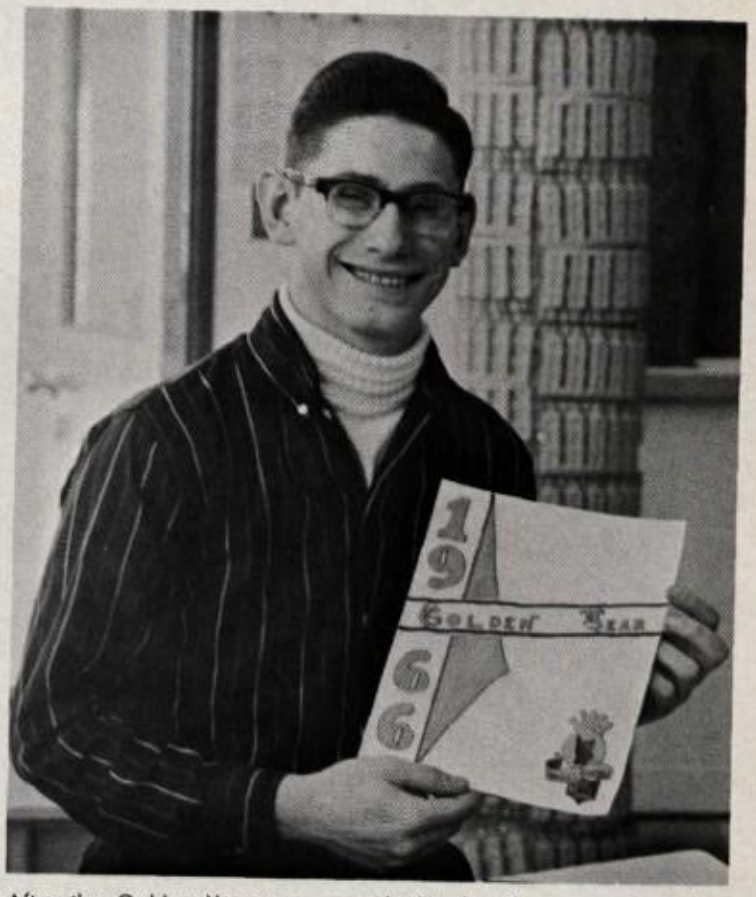
Peggy Frett won the Betty Crocker Future Homemakers of America Award.

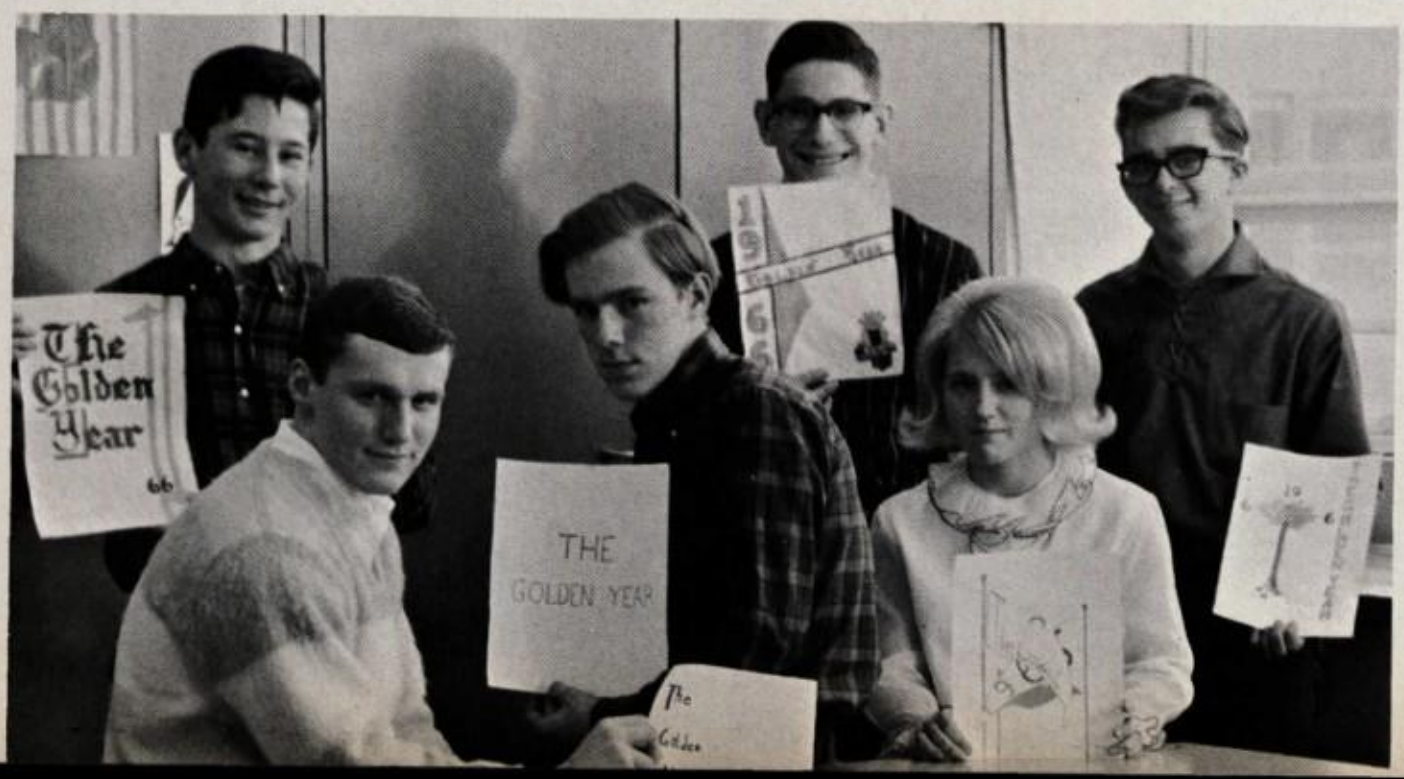
Mr. Parsley gave Gerrie Vartunas her five dollar prize for naming the Bow Wow Bulletin, school newspaper, as Mr. Hill, Building Principal looked on.

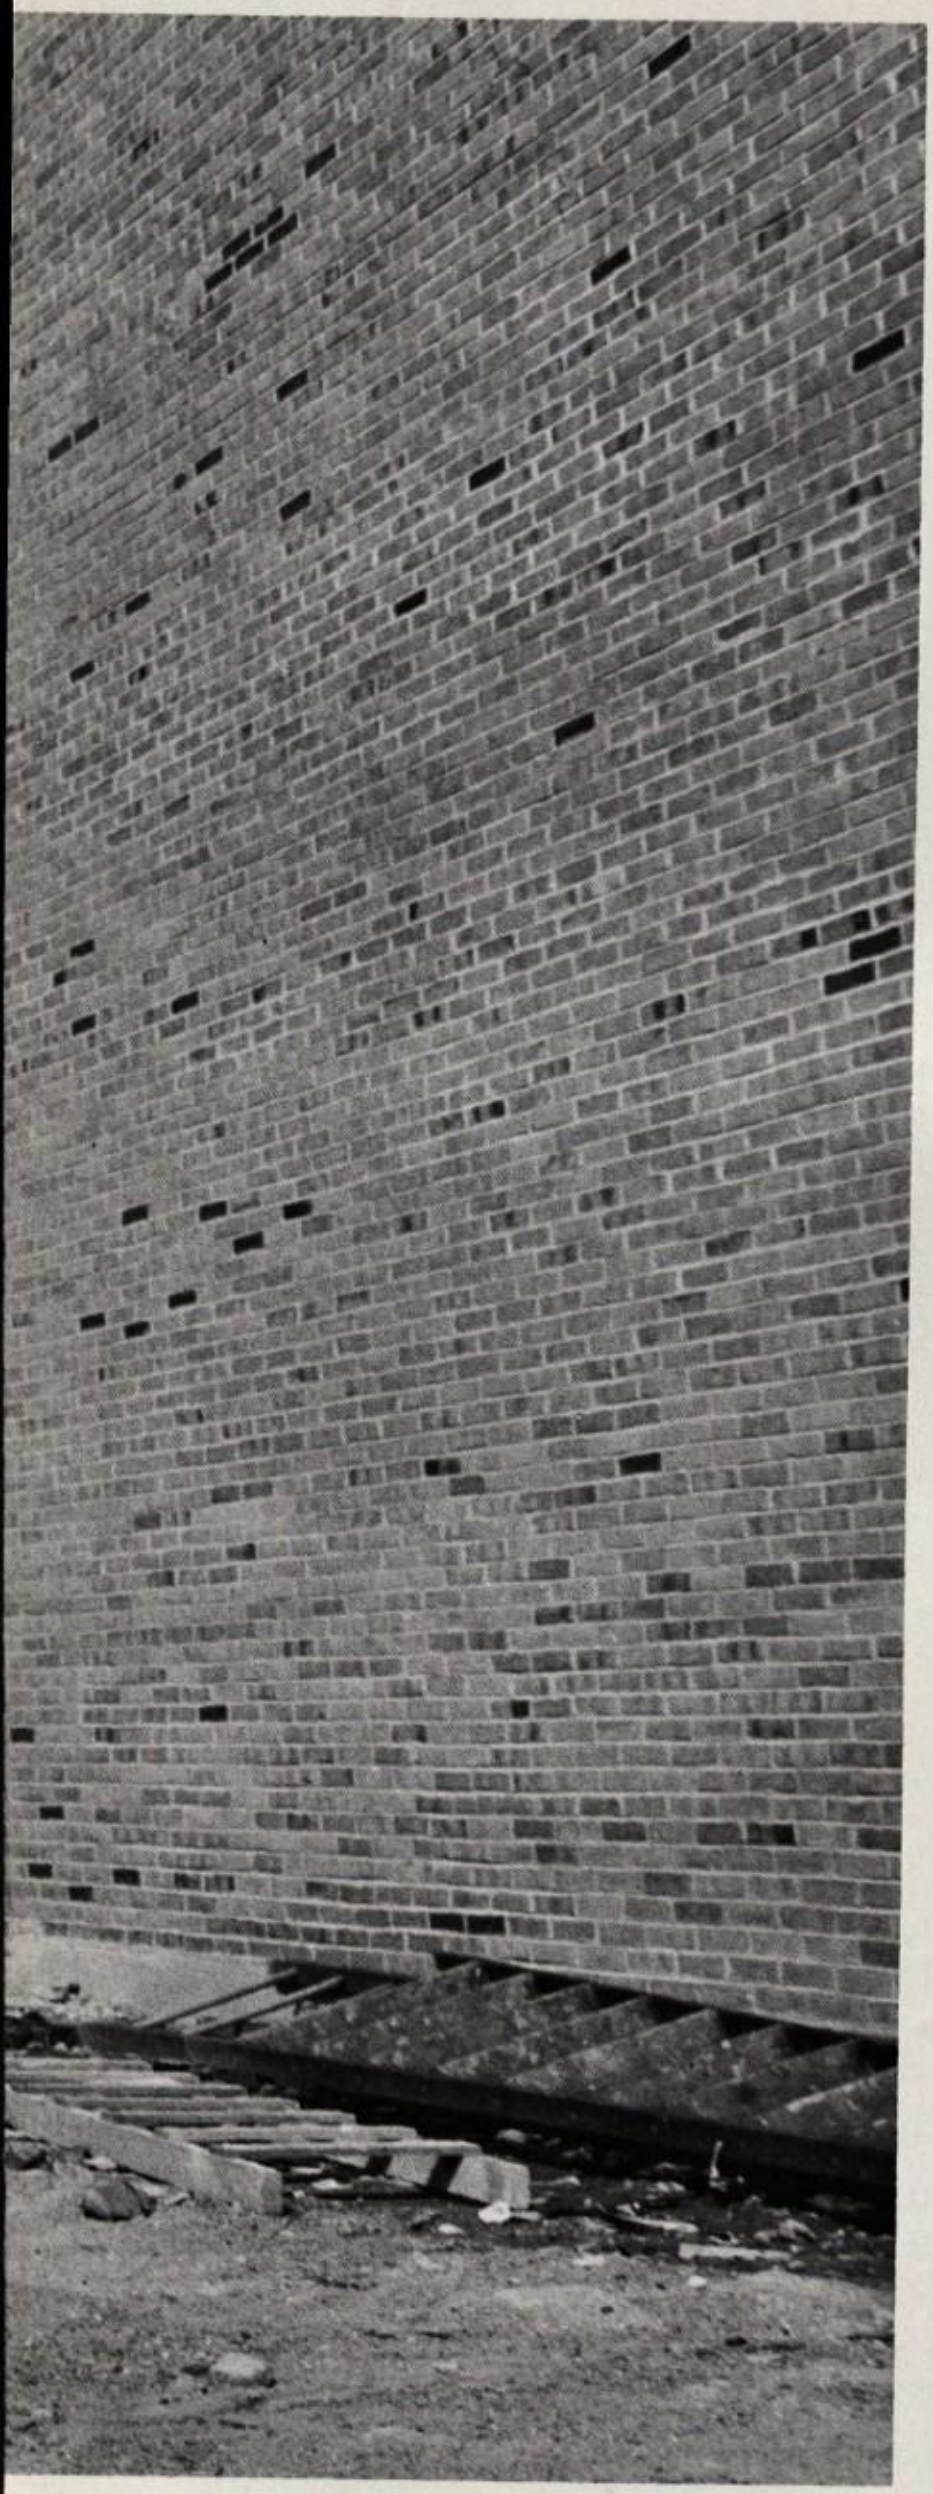
Marjorie Bullion received a five dollar prize for naming the yearbook, Golden Year, from Mr. Parsley and Mr. Hill.



After the Golden Year was named, Charles Bergman submitted a cover design which won a free hard cover yearbook.

The top six yearbook cover designes were submitted by Tom Krolak, Geoffery McLaughlin, Christine Stelzer, Ed Heffernan, Charles Bergman, and Bill Nicholson.





June brought a temporary lull in the daily routine of school life. For the members of the Class of 1966, June meant graduation and the beginning of a new phase in their lives. Their visible ties to high school were permanently severed, yet the seniors will always be bound to Harold L. Richards High School by the invisible bonds of memory. Perhaps they will smile as they recall some of the everyday events . . . getting lost in the halls of the new Campus building on the first day of school . . . the laughter of a cluster of friends meeting in the cafeteria . . . the endless hours of study and research in the library. Or perhaps their clearest memories will be of the special events scattered throughout the year . . . the Turnabout Dance, with its girl-asks-boy format . . . the informal fun of the Student Council sock hops . . . the elegance of "Tropical Splendor", our first Prom . . . sporting events, with our teams cheered on by hoarse shouts of "Go, BULLDOGS!" All these memories and many more will remain in the heart of every senior long after they leave Harold L. Richards High School for the last time. The future awaits the Class of 1966, a future built upon the foundations of experience.

The success of the 1966 Golden Year can be attributed to the work of many people. Sincere thanks are due to our publishers, the Norman King Company of Park Ridge, and to Root Photographers of Chicago, who gave us their fullest co-operation. The help of the teachers who aided the staff members in many ways is deeply appreciated. Our thanks is especially given to the large group of students who assisted the staff by typing and identifying pictures. We would also like to express our deep indebtedness to our parents, for without their support our participation would have been impossible. The staff acknowledges with profound gratitude the unselfish devotion and valuable assistance of our faculty adviser, Mrs. Norma Bruce, and her husband, Mr. Aldon Bruce, who dedicated many evenings and weekends to insure the success of the Golden Year. It is hoped that the efforts put into the production of the 1966 Golden Year have fulfilled your hopes and expectations.
